Inspire

Blake Lasuzzo

COO

Blake Lasuzzo is the chief operating officer at Inspire. After spending a long career in energy trading, Blake made the decision to use his analytical powers for good. He joined Inspire to build the artificial intelligence platform needed to power the first fully integrated clean energy company.

Blake drives the strategic vision and execution of Symphony, Inspire's proprietary operating system. Under his leadership, Symphony has grown to power everything from core business operations and clean energy procurement to Inspire's personalized subscription plans and smart home automation services.

Prior to Inspire, Blake held a variety of leadership positions in retail energy. Most recently, he was senior vice president at Just Energy, where he oversaw the trading, pricing and structuring, and commercial application of emerging technology globally.