

E-Billing 101

Some of the benefits of E-Billing over traditional mail include saving paper, reduced risk of identity theft, and worry-free payment options.

What Is E-Bill?

- ➔ E-bill is the electronic notification that your NCFB insurance bill is due. Two to three weeks prior to the due date of your bill, an email is sent indicating your policy balance and the amount currently due. The email includes a link to view the complete billing notice on the NCFB Customer Portal, accessible from this site.
- ➔ Keep in mind that while paper bills will be eliminated, some policy documents such as declarations, cancellation and expiration notices, will still be mailed to your physical billing address.
- ➔ Interested in a monthly payment plan? E-Billed policies are eligible for monthly billing. First, enroll your policy or policies in E-Bill via the Customer Portal. Then ask your agent, associate agent, or customer service representative in your local office to submit a monthly payment plan request for the desired policy. (Please don't forget this important second step.)

What Is E-Bill?

- While any policy on any payment plan can be registered to receive electronic billing notifications, either automatic bank draft, or E-Bill is required to be eligible for the monthly payment plan option.
- Please keep in mind that the request for a monthly payment plan is two-fold: First, you must register your policy or policies on the Customer Portal, then your agent, or other staff member in your local North Carolina Farm Bureau office must submit your payment plan request.

NOTE: If you purchase a new policy with us, you will need to wait until you receive your policy declaration in the mail before signing up. Your policy declaration will have the policy number you need to register for a Customer Portal account, and enroll in E-Bill.

- If you request the monthly payment plan at new business and the policy is not enrolled in E-Bill during the initial policy term, when the policy renews, the monthly payment plan will be discontinued and the policy will be placed on the next available payment plan. For example, a new business auto policy that was initially billed in six monthly installments will renew on a three payment plan (to be billed every other month).
- Mid-term requests for the monthly payment plan will not be processed unless the policy is enrolled in E-Bill.
