“Quick and Easy!! We had to take our GSD to the emergency vet because he decided to eat a whole corn on the cob off the counter. After leaving with our pup I was able to submit a claim on the app that was quick and simple and once all information was submitted we had our reimbursement within 2 days!! ## Leading the Pack in Pet Insurance: Insights from Our President on a Hybrid Work Environment

Q: What have you seen since implementing your hybrid work schedule?

A: Morale and creativity amongst employees are at an all-time high. It's been great to see team-building efforts unfold that simply wouldn't happen in a fully remote environment. From the ability to have informal meetings, engage in serendipitous interactions, problem solve, white board, collaborate, and cultivate relationships – our hybrid schedule is delivering everything we hoped it would.

Q: What do you think are the biggest perks of offering employees a hybrid work schedule? What advice would you offer to an executive considering implementing a hybrid work schedule?

A: The biggest perk we've seen is the ability to offer more work/life balance for employees. Offering the option to work remote three days a week creates rigor around when work starts and when work ends on those days. But, obviously, on those two days our staff are in the office, they can't do things they'd have the ability to do working from home, like throw in that extra load of laundry, take their dog for a quick walk, or run an errand. The key is to experiment with the hybrid work environment and find things that work for people and continue to enhance office spaces. People are there to meet and interact, but if you still have other team members who are fully virtual, the staff in the office still needs to have the ability to hold virtual meetings. We need to continue to think through how to best utilize the space and the resources the office has and cater to that hybrid environment.

What changes in the talent market have you seen in the past year?

A: Each day we are finding more salaried and knowledgeable workers who are interested in working with Embrace. We are pursuing more candidates, and even have more people reach out proactively. It's been fairly easy for us to fill open roles, even more so this year than last year, and the talent market has started to loosen up a little bit.

Do Pets Experience Springtime Allergies?

Jenna Mahan, Embrace's Director of Claims & Underwriting and a Registered Veterinary Technician, Explains

Warmer days and blooming flowers may cause pets to show allergy symptoms. While humans often experience respiratory symptoms, pets may show skin irritation and itchiness.

Here are some common signs of springtime allergies in pets, as well as tips for managing them:

- Excessive itching and scratching: If your pet is constantly licking, biting, or scratching their skin, it could be a sign of allergies. You may also notice redness, flakiness, or infected areas on their skin.
- Sneezing and runny nose: Just like humans, pets can experience respiratory symptoms during allergy season. If your pet is sneezing frequently or has a runny nose, it could be due to pollen or other allergens in the air.
- Ear infections: Allergies can also lead to ear infections in pets. If your dog or cat is shaking their head or scratching their ears excessively, it could be a sign of an infection.

What can you do to help your pet during allergy season? Here are some tips:

- Regularly vacuuming and dusting can help reduce the allergens in your home. You may also want to consider using an air purifier to filter out pollen and other irritants.
- Bathing your pet with a pet-friendly shampoo can soothe itchy skin and remove allergens, but avoid over-bathing to prevent skin dryness. Try using an oatmeal or coconut-based shampoo and moisturizing conditioner.
- Pets inhale and ingest allergens by licking them off their fur. You can't prevent inhalation of allergens outside, but wiping their paws and fur with a damp cloth after coming indoors can help remove any allergens they picked up
- If steps to reduce allergies at home don't help, visit your vet for a proper treatment plan and medication. Antihistamines can be helpful and may be prescribed by your vet.

Although springtime allergies can cause discomfort for pets and their owners, there are ways to manage symptoms and ensure your furry friend's comfort. Consult with your vet and take proactive steps to reduce allergens in your home, enabling your pet to enjoy the season.

Embrace Pet Spotlight

I had lost my beloved dog in 2020, and he was everything to us, and it was a huge loss. I was truly in mourning for a long time. We finally decided it was time to adopt again. After an extensive search to find a dog that was a fit for our family, we met Ida Petunia. She was found after midnight wandering the streets California, and we decided she was a perfect match. Ida is a character, and we've fallen in love with her – our little monkey.

I chose Embrace as my pet insurance provider because I just had a good feeling. I called to inquire, and all of your customer service staff are so wonderful and genuinely caring. I always tell people, get pet insurance, because you just never know. Pet insurance is invaluable! The claims process is easy and efficient. Each and every person at Embrace is kind and warm, and that's so important for a worried dog parent. Reaching an equally caring pet person on the other end is everything. Looking at Embrace as a brand, every person is representative of the company. We are grateful for the peace of mind Embrace gives us for our little Ida Petunia!" – Mara L.
