Victor P. Holt joins the 2019 Metropolitan Washington Airport Authority Small Business University

Washington, DC- Victor P. Holt, President and CEO of V-Tech Solutions, Inc. (V-Tech), has been accepted into the 2019 Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority Small Business University (MWAA SBU). This 7-week program offers executive level coursework to deserving high potential business owners in the District of Columbia. The purpose of the program is to "build community, capacity and capital for regional entrepreneurs". Through George Mason University, successful graduates are awarded a non-credit MWAA BSU Executive Certification.

This highly competitive program is offered to business owners free of charge through partnerships with George Mason University (GMU), DC Small Business Development Center (SBDC), and DC Procurement Technical Assistance Center (PTAC). One of the limited requirements for participants is to engage and foster relationships with these resource centers for ongoing support. MWAA also encourages program graduates to share new business awards and success stories. Mr. Holt looks forward to this intensive training program and the opportunity to leverage his acquired knowledge in the communities V-Tech supports.
