
Library 2.0. The project reinterprets the role of the library, which traditionally allowed room for one-way flow of knowledge, to create a library that evolves itself through constant interactions with the users. In this project, the designers intended to create an open culture yard where the distinction between the writers and the readers, between information and the masses, would be dismantled by intercommunicative and non-hierarchic exchange of information.

Bob Magazine, Collection: New Ideas Library 2.0 July 2006