INDIANAPOLIS, IN, November 5, 2026—Arte Club: Presented by The Indiana Mexican Latino Artists Network brings a vibrant selection of artworks celebrating the richness and diversity of the Latino community to the Bret Waller Gallery at Newfields. For the second year at Newfields, the exhibition highlights varied perspectives, cultural experiences and creative styles of local Latino artists.

Arte Club invites artists to consider their Latinidad through works that showcase the beauty of Latino culture and express the nuances of their individual identities. The exhibition encourages conversations about the complexity and diversity of Latino identity and the way it is shaped by personal experience, place and culture.

Reflecting the varied histories, heritages and traditions of Latin America itself, which is comprised of over 20 countries, Arte Club brings a variety of mediums, expressions and artists into conversation with each other. This exhibition provides a platform for artists to explore their individuality and connection to place and culture through art.

Arte Club is produced by the Indiana Mexican Latino Artists Network, which is an initiative by Arte Mexicano en Indiana. The organization is grateful for the support of Allen Whitehill Clowes Charitable Foundation, Nina Mason Pulliam Charitable Trust, Glick Philanthropies, Herbert Simon Family Foundation, and the Indy Arts Council, whose generous contributions made the formalization of this initiative possible. Special thanks to Rebecca and Michael Kubacki.

Arte Club is open now in the Bret Waller Gallery on the first floor of the Indianapolis Museum of Art. The exhibition is free to the public and will be on view until January 24, 2027.
