Travel into and around central London will be extremely busy, so please take extra caution and plan ahead where possible to avoid delays. Pride in London 2023 attracted 1.5 million spectators and broke the all-time record. We may be setting a new record this year. So do plan ahead, allow more time for your journeys and travel early if possible.

For Parade participants, the TfL recommends arriving at Marble Arch or Bond Street. For those wanting to view the Parade or attend the events on Trafalgar Square or in Soho, the TfL recommends arriving at Bond Street, Tottenham Court Road, Waterloo or Embankment.

TfL also advises that some bus routes in central London will be on diversion or stopping short of their usual destination due to road closures. For the most up-to-date travel advice on the day, please consult the TfL website or the TfL Go app directly before you head out. Note that mobile network reliability may be impacted due to large crowds—do consider this when making plans to meet others at the event.
