

Verify User-Entered Data in Real Time to Streamline Agreements

Modern organisations use DocuSign to prepare and send agreements with only a few clicks. However, when they get those completed documents back, they need to validate the information and make sure there are no errors. The process involves manually checking data against third-party sources to verify that it's correct. If the data has problems, it's sent back to the signer and the process starts all over again.

Data Verification checks signer-provided data in DocuSign envelopes against external data sources in real time to make sure no fields are skipped and formatting errors are avoided. The result is faster, simpler agreements with fewer manual steps and less wasted time.

Accelerate turnaround time and minimise errors

Eliminate manual steps in your agreement process by validating data in real time as it is entered by a user. Increase conversion rate and reduce not-in-good-order documents resulting from incomplete fields or errors.

Reduce risk with connections to trusted data sources

For every verification, track details—which information was verified, which external source it was checked against, and when—in an audit log that is incorporated into the certificate of completion. Reduce the risk of noncompliance or reputational damage and create easy evidence of verification.

Improve the agreement experience for users

Signers gain confidence knowing that the information they're submitting won't bounce back for another round of data entry. This gives agreement preparers a simple, modern experience and a faster turnaround than traditional workflow.
