

Fuel fraud is very real and costly.

In our experience, it's not a question of – is fuel fraud being committed within a business? – but, for how long? The thing is, we can put a halt to it tomorrow.

Let the facts speak for themselves

Fuel fraud is increasing – we remove the risk

- » Fuel fraud can account for 10%–20% of a company's fuel spend
- » There are three forms of fuel fraud:
 - Misuse: This is when employees use company resources for personal gain, such as fuelling a personal vehicle or filling a friend or family member's vehicle
 - Slippage: This is when an employee uses company dollars to purchase non-fuel items, such as food and drinks, but falsely reports it as a legitimate fuel purchase
 - Fraud: This is perpetrated by a third-party and can include stolen and skimmed card data, which has been on the increase for many fleets in recent years
- » How we avoid fuel fraud:
 - Our trained HaloGo service ambassadors match the booking with the registration plate and the approved payment method, so no additional purchases or unapproved vehicles / containers
 - No physical cards or cash is exchanged, as all transactions happen through our secure management portal and app, in real time
 - As a fleet manager, you can see the status of each transaction at every stage