

Terms and Conditions for Orders of Siemens, s.r.o.

– Date of Issue: 1st October 2025 –

I. Introductory Provisions

1. These Terms and Conditions for Orders (hereinafter only as the “Terms and Conditions”) are the terms and conditions within the meaning of the Section 1751 et seq. of Act No. 89/2012 Coll., the Civil Code (hereinafter only as the “Civil Code”). These Terms and Conditions shall govern the legal relationship that has arisen between Siemens, s.r.o., as the customer for services (hereinafter only as “Siemens” or the “customer”) and the supplier of services (hereinafter only as the “supplier”), regardless of the fact of what specific type of contract is arranged between them. The specification of the provided services (hereinafter only as the “supply” or “service”) is defined by the contract.

2. In the event of a discrepancy between these Terms and Conditions and the Terms and Conditions of the supplier, these Terms and Conditions shall prevail.

3. The supplier explicitly confirms that he has read, understood and agreed with the Article III, Section 4 and 5, Article V, Section 3, Article VI, Section 1, Article VIII and Article XV, Section 5, 6 and 10 of these Terms and Conditions.

II. Creation of the Contractual Relationship between the Customer and the Supplier – Order and Acceptance (Confirmation) of the Order, Basic Principles of the Supplier’s Fulfilment

1. The contractual relationship between the customer and the supplier shall arise as of the issuance of a written order by the customer (hereinafter only as “a proposal of the contract”) and the written unconditional acceptance of the order by the supplier (hereinafter only as the “order confirmation”). The order confirmation requires a written form; otherwise it is invalid.

2. The customer shall have the right to cancel or change the order in writing at any time prior to its confirmation by the supplier.

3. If the confirmation of the order and/or the performance by the supplier deviates from the content of the order, the customer shall be bound by the deviation only if he has expressly approved such deviation from the order in writing to the supplier. Neither the acceptance of performance from the supplier nor payment by the customer for such performance shall mean an approval.

4. Any provisions in other documents provided by the supplier (such as but not limited to specifications, data sheets, technical documentation, advertising materials, order confirmation and/or shipping documents) regarding legal terms, warranty, liability, restriction of use, restriction of application and/or restriction of suitability, or any other provision that changes the provisions of these Terms and Conditions for Orders shall not be applicable.

5. The supplier shall perform the fulfilment with the greatest care and state-of-the-art of science and technology, in order to enable the best possible result to be achieved. The supplier shall incorporate the customer’s specifications and inform the customer promptly if in its opinion changes to the fulfilment which would result in improvements are possible.

6. Unless expressly agreed otherwise, the supplier shall keep the customer informed about the progress of the fulfilment carried out on behalf of the customer. Upon the customer’s request, the supplier shall allow the customer access to the documentation of fulfilment.

III. Price, Payment Terms and Setoff

1. The price is a final price. The price shall include all of the supplier’s costs necessary for the proper performance of the supply, including travel and accommodation costs. The price also includes any fee for granting of the right to utilize the software and firmware, if such software or firmware is a part of the supply.

2. The customer shall have an obligation to pay the supplier on the basis of a tax document (hereinafter only as the “invoice”). The invoice must also contain correct VAT rate as well as the customer’s order number, as well as the numbers (and relevant material designations (codes)) of each item. In case the domestic reverse charge regime is applicable, the invoice must include code of the taxable supplies according to the relevant instructions of the GŘ (Generální finanční ředitelství). The customer is entitled to return any invoice which is incorrectly prepared, incomplete or unsupported with relevant documents within the due period without being considered late with the payment.

3. The supplier shall have an obligation to issue an invoice as of the date of the performance of taxable supply in accordance with the relevant legislation.

4. The payment deadline of the invoice is stipulated as 60 days from the delivery of the invoice to the customer. The price shall be paid to the supplier’s bank account specified in the contract and made available by the tax authority in remote matter and is administered by the provider of payment services inland. Application of the paragraph 8 of this Article is not excluded. The customer's debt is settled as of the debiting of the amount from the customer's account. In the event of a delay in payment on the part of the customer for a period of up to 7 days, the supplier shall not be entitled to charge late interest.

5. The supplier shall have the right to set off its claims that are due for payment, enforceable, not statute-barred, that are not disputed between the parties, and under the condition that the set off was approved by the customer in writing. The customer shall have the right to set off, by a written declaration made to the supplier, any of its due and undue claims against any due and undue claims of the supplier. The supplier shall not be entitled to assign any claim against the customer to any third party without prior written consent of the customer. Claims in different currencies can be set off at the exchange rate set by the Czech National Bank as at the date of the setoff.

6. The payment of the price by the customer is under the condition that the supplier is not in delay in any payment in regard to it for supplies that were supplied by the customer to the supplier even on the basis of another contractual relationship. For the duration of such delay on the part of the supplier, the customer is not in delay in the payment of the price and the agreed deadline for payment shall be appropriately extended by the time corresponding to the duration of the above-stated delay on the part of the supplier. Payment does not constitute an acknowledgement that the corresponding fulfilment was provided in accordance with the Contract

7. Upon request by the customer in justified cases (e.g. in the case of the supplier's insolvency), the supplier shall provide documentary evidence that it is making proper VAT payments. Until the time of the delivery of such evidence, the customer shall be entitled to postpone the payment for the provided supply, without this causing a delay in payment to occur. Application of the following paragraph is not excluded.

8. Should the supplier be declared as of the date of the performance of taxable supply as an unreliable tax payer according to VAT legislation or should the customer be in good faith that the supplier is in a position that would otherwise establish the customer's liability for unpaid VAT, the customer shall be entitled to a) pay the supplier the price of a supply without the sum equal to the relevant amount of VAT, or b) pay the VAT for the supply directly to the account of the relevant tax authority.

9. The supplier shall provide the customer with the necessary cooperation in the customer's dealings in regard to the tax authority, which shall consist primarily in the due and timely provision of truthful information and documents and in support in the customer's dealings with the tax authority, should the tax authority raise a claim against the customer under the title of its liability for VAT, or should the customer voluntarily pay VAT for a supply under this contract.

IV. Handover and Takeover of the Supply

1. The supply shall be taken over as of written confirmation.

2. The customer shall have the right at any time to call upon the supplier by written notice to suspend the performance of the contract. The supplier shall have an obligation, upon receipt of such notice, to suspend all work until the time when it receives a written notice from the customer calling upon it to continue in the performance.

3. For the first 90 days from the date of the suspension of the performance of the contract, the supplier shall not have the right to require the payment of a storage fee or other costs that it incurs as a result of the same. Deadlines for the performance of the contract shall be extended reasonably by the time of the duration of the suspension of performance.

4. If there is a threat of delay on the part of the supplier, the supplier shall have an obligation to immediately inform the customer of such fact and request its instructions.

5. In the case of a delay by the supplier in the performance of the contract, the supplier shall have an obligation to pay the customer a contractual penalty in the amount of 0.3% of the price of the relevant performance (with VAT) for each day of delay. The agreement on the contractual penalty shall not affect the customer's right to the compensation of damage exceeding the contractual penalty.

6. The place of performance is the place stated in the order.

7. The supplier shall have the right to arrange for the performance of the supply by way of a sub-supplier only with the previous consent of the customer.

8. If the nature of the specific part of the supply allows it, the supply or its part can also be performed by way of so-called remote access. The supplier shall bear the costs associated with remote access.

9. The supplier shall only have the right to perform the supply prior to the agreed time of performance with the express written consent of the customer.

V. Other conditions for the provision of the service

1. Materials owned by the customer and provided to the supplier for the purpose of the execution of the supply shall remain in the ownership of the customer, must be separately stored, marked and administratively recorded at no other extra cost to the customer. Their utilization is permissible only for the fulfilment of the supplier's obligations to the customer. In the case of their depreciation or loss, the supplier shall have an obligation, at its own cost, to procure and apply the corresponding compensation.

2. The processing and/or modification of materials of the customer are conducted solely for the customer. The customer is directly the owner or co-owner of the modified material, intermediate good or new item. Should it not be possible for legal reasons, it shall be assumed that the customer is, at each moment of processing or modification, the owner of each new item. The supplier shall have an obligation to take care of each such new item for the customer without extra charge with a professional care until its handing over to the customer.

3. The Supplier shall assume the risk of changes of circumstances according to Sections 1764 to 1766 of the Civil Code.

VI. Warranty for Quality, Liability for Defects

1. The supplier shall provide the customer with a warranty for quality for the supplied supplies for duration of 3 years whereby the warranty period shall commence as of the moment of the passage of the risk of damage.

2. In the case of supplies that are further supplied by the customer to a third party, without having been used, the warranty period shall commence only as of the takeover of the supply by the relevant third party, but ends no later than 3 years after the passage of the risk of damage to the customer.

3. The supplier also undertakes that his performance shall be in accordance with the requirements of the ISO 9001, ISO 14001, ISO 27001 and EN ISO 45001:2018 standards. Certificates confirming compliance with these standards must be available on the supplier's web site. If the supplier doesn't possess these certificates, he is obliged to act in accordance with those standards. The customer is entitled to conduct an audit at the supplier to verify his compliance with the requirements. The supplier undertakes to comply with all customer's policies, guides, regulations, guidelines and instructions of which he has been informed.

4. In the case of a defect that was ascertained before the passage of the risk of damage or appeared within the warranty period, the supplier shall have an obligation, at its own cost and according to the customer's choice, to either eliminate such defect or to supply new supply within 5 business days. This provision shall also apply to supplies for which the acceptance inspection was only limited to the random inspection of samples or identity. The supplier shall have an obligation to send the customer information regarding the remedial measures that it has taken in order to prevent a recurrence of the mistakes in a format as required by the customer. The deadline for the sending of the information shall be 2 business days from the receipt of the warranty claim.

5. If the supplier fails to perform the elimination of the defect, or a replacement of the supply, even after being granted a reasonable additional time by the customer, the customer shall have the right:

- a) To withdraw from the contract in full or in part;
- b) To require the granting of a discount; or
- c) At the supplier's cost, either itself or through a third party, to proceed with the elimination of the defect or to arrange a replacement supply, whereby the supplier's obligations under the quality warranty and under liability for defects shall not be affected thereby.

6. The customer shall have the right to impose a contractual penalty against the supplier for defective performance of the subject of the contract in the amount of 15% of the price. If there is a delay with regard to a specific, fixed date (fixed contract), the customer is entitled to demand a penalty of 5 % (five percent) of the respective order amount for this specific date and/or to withdraw from the contract. The customer's right to compensation of damage exceeding the contractual penalty shall not be affected by agreement on the contractual penalty.

7. The elimination of the defect at the supplier's cost can occur even without the provision of an additional time to the supplier, if the supplier has been already in delay with his performance.

8. On the basis of a written notification by the customer has the supplier an obligation to reimburse the customer for the costs incurred in a consequence with the breach of the supplier's obligation and for the costs of elimination of all defects of the supply. That shall also apply accordingly to the costs ineffectually expended by the customer for processing or modification of supply for the purpose as set out above.

9. The customer shall have the right to assert warranty claims for defects of the supply within 1 month of the provision of the service.

10. The rules set out above shall also apply to a corresponding extent to supplies constituting a repair according to the paragraph 4.

11. The costs associated with a warranty claim including its transport shall be borne by the supplier.

VII. Licensing Arrangements

1. If, as its part, the supply includes software or another product protected by copyright (hereinafter only as the "copyright work"), including associated knowledge and know-how for their utilization, the customer shall have the right and obligation to handle such copyright work in the manner as set out below.

2. The supplier shall inform the customer - at the latest at the time the order is confirmed - whether the products and services to be delivered contain "Open Source Software". "Open Source Software" means any software that is provided royalty-free by the respective licensor to any user on the basis of a license or another agreement with the right to modify and/or to distribute such software. Open License Terms include for example the following licenses: the GNU, General Public License (GPL), the GNU Lesser GPL (LGPL), the BSD License, the Apache License or the MIT License. Should the supplier not indicate until issuing order confirmation that its supply contains open source software, the customer is entitled to withdraw the order within 14 days of receipt of this information or receipt of such information and its verification. The customer's right to compensation of damage shall not be affected.

3. The supplier hereby grants the customer the following nonexclusive, transferrable, worldwide and time-unlimited rights to:

- a) the use of supplies, their integration into other products and their worldwide distribution;
- b) the provision of a sublicense for the use or permission to third parties to use the copyright work and related documentation in connection with the installation, commissioning, testing and operation of the copyright work;

- f) in addition to the rights granted above, the persons set out in section c) shall have the right to permit end users to transmit licenses for the use of the copyright work.

4. All sublicenses granted by the customer must contain the relevant protection of intellectual property rights that the supplier owns. All sublicenses must contain contractual provisions utilized by the customer for the protection of its own intellectual property rights.

5. The supplier declares that it has the right to grant the rights to the copyright work as set out above, and it primarily declares that it has settled all of the necessary copyrights of third parties.

VIII. Compensation of Damage Incurred by the Supplier

1. The total scope of the customer's obligations to compensate the supplier for harm (damage) on assets (damage) caused that the supplier incurred in connection with the performance of the contract or the breach of a legal regulation shall be limited up to the amount of 10% of the total contractual price (without VAT), for all loss events in their aggregate. Only actual damage shall be
