

GND Teknik was established in 2013 in order to provide services in the fields of educational technology products and started its activities with its young and dynamic team.

Our staff has different academic and practical backgrounds, they are experts in their field and can easily adapt to innovations, in substance we are a high-tech services provider.

We are didactic partner with SIEMENS company concerning automation training sets. Today it is already clear that, many laboratories have been established with the SIEMENS PLC training sets in the country.

The best technical training targeted, with the support of documentation.

Additionally we do other custom designed and oriented production of training sets in Microcontroller and IoT areas. We process in those products and Internet of Things studies and covering the main topics of the Industry 4.0. With stepping of those works, we are opening the foundations of industrial automation applications.

Our mission is to target many innovative products.

