The Magic They Brought

Breathe in deeply.
Breathe out long and slow.

You're missing someone special.

It's a loss no-one else could know.

There's a space left in your home now.

A light missed but always near.

Yet the memories still hold you.

In their warmth so bright and clear.

There's countless gifts to treasure.

Like they treasured their favourite toy.

The love they brought so readily.

All those moments filled with joy.

Remember their favourite tickle.

And the treats that made their day.

Because you made their life amazing.

If they could talk,
that's what they'd say.

So until you can smile and remember.

Please just allow yourself to grieve.

But hold on to the magic they brought.

Because in time, the pain will ease.
