GROWTH THROUGH DIVERSITY

30% CLUB EXECUTIVE EDUCATION SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAMME GUIDE 2021

The 30% Club in conjunction with Ireland's top learning institutions offer a suite of scholarships in a variety of fields, to better equip future female leaders.

In partnership with

pwc

Gillian Harford

Country Executive for 30% Club Ireland

The 30% Club Ireland is proud to be launching our Executive Education Scholarship Programme for its seventh consecutive year. Because of the support and generosity of higher level institutions across Ireland, the programme has provided over 80 professional women with scholarships to pursue executive education in their chosen field. We are proud of the accomplishment of all our alumni, and the vast impact they are making across the fields of Business, STEM, and Healthcare. These women are influencing the drive to achieve better gender balance on boards, and within executive leadership.

To the next generation of scholarship recipients: You are about to make an empowering decision to expand your education. We welcome you into the 30% Club network, and we can't wait to see what you achieve. We're here to support you.

30% CLUB IRELAND 2021 EXECUTIVE EDUCATION SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAMME

Data in the most recent national census, carried out in 2016, showed that women made up 53% of the students graduating from third level education, with a quarter of those students studying business, administration and law.

Yet we know that the numbers of women moving on to post graduate and executive education is not keeping pace with representation levels at third level. Global research by the Financial Times indicates some progress is being made, with enrollment levels for women on full-time MBA programmes up from 30% in 2010 to 36% in 2019.

At the same time, while we have seen an increase in the percentage of women at upper management levels in companies, it is also progressing at a slow rate. Research carried out by the 30% Club, in partnership with DCU and Ibec, shows that the number of women in executive director roles in 2018 had reached 30%, up from 23% in 2015.

At the 30% Club we believe very strongly in the view that executive education is an important support for career progression into senior roles, for men and women. We also support the view that diversity in the executive classroom is just as important in delivering better outcomes, as diversity in the workplace.

That's why the 30% Club has established partnerships with a number of learning institutions to address the under-representation of women pursuing post-graduate management education, by offering scholarships aimed at women.

Through these partnerships, we seek to build a continuum of change, highlighting the impact of executive education in accelerating career development and helping women, like you, to decide to undertake further education.

TIPS FROM OUR ALUMNI

TALK TO YOUR EMPLOYER

The most important thing you need to do is talk about your intentions with your team lead – it is very likely that you will need to manage the course, and course requirements, around your day job. You should also let your colleagues know – you'll be glad of the support that a team can bring!

Essential things to consider and discuss are:

- How the course can fit into your personal career development plan, and your future with the organisation.
- The demands of the programme, especially if there are classes during standard working hours or away days, and how you can work together to make this happen more effectively. Does your organisation have an agile working policy where you can flex start/finish times, or work remotely at times to support class attendance?
- If a scholarship is for 50% of the fees, is there a matching option for the balance? Ask your HR team.
- What flexibility / support is available for exam leave.
- Are there any opportunities to use work items as case studies for projects or learning?

PICK THE RIGHT COURSE

There are a range of options to choose from, so think about what is right for you – not just today, but think about long term benefits. Are you a specialist that would benefit from a more generalist programme like an MBA; are you a specialist that would like a deeper understanding of a topic such as healthcare or STEM; are you planning to remain in the private sector or the public sector; will this programme stretch you sufficiently for long term benefit. Most importantly, is this a programme that better prepares you for a leadership role.

TALK TO THE COLLEGE

Typically each programme has a course coordinator, and they can be very useful contacts for understanding more about the curriculum, the 'real' work schedule, the flexibility and requirements around attendance. They can also be a great resource for alumni referrals if you'd like to talk to someone who has done the course previously, especially if you would like to talk to someone about how they managed the balance of course work and a full-time job.

GET THE BALANCE RIGHT

Taking on further education, particularly when focusing on your career, can feel daunting and conjures up visions of the most expensive time management course you will ever undertake! So tap into every support that you can get. Talk to friends and family and don't be afraid to ask for help and support on the practicalities and don't turn down offers of help. Former scholarship winners are also great resources to tap into, so check on website links to see if they are featured and available to chat.

This is not a time where you have to be Superwoman to be a super woman – think about things you can 'let go' of temporarily to free up more time and remember it's only for a year or two in what is hopefully a long and successful career.

DIPLOMA IN CORPORATE GOVERNANCE, UCD SMURFIT EXECUTIVE DEVELOPMENT

ABOUT US

With Corporate Governance issues becoming increasingly important across all areas of business, this diploma will impart the technical knowledge necessary to support the varied tasks required of senior executives in governance roles and current and prospective company directors. This programme offers an in-depth exposure to all aspects of corporate governance, including the legal and regulatory framework relevant to company directors and board members and behavioural and psychological issues relevant to boards. The key strength of the programme is the peer-to-peer learning from the highly experienced participants in the Corporate Governance classes.

THE SCHOLARSHIP

The programme runs over 2 x 12-week semesters and commences in September 2021. This is a fully funded scholarship and is awarded to an outstanding female candidate based on the breadth and depth of work experience as well as past academic/professional qualification performance. The diploma is part of the MSc in Business Pathway.

Smurfit Executive Development

UCD Michael Smurfit Graduate Business School

HOW TO APPLY

APPLICATION PROCESS

Participants should hold a primary degree or professional qualification and be ordinarily or legally resident in Ireland and will be expected to have held or currently hold senior positions with considerable organisational experience but not necessarily corporate governance expertise. Consideration will also be given to applicants who do not hold a primary degree but whose depth of industry / organisational experience, deems them suitable participants.

In order to apply for the scholarship, an application form should be submitted, along with a scholarship application essay (approx. 500 words in length).

The essay should address the following two questions:

1. What are the key attributes that you possess which would make you an effective director?
2. Why should you be considered and awarded this scholarship?

Full details can be found here.
