

REVO Insurance receives a sustainability rating upgrade to EE+ by Standard Ethics

The upgrade recognizes the adoption of ESG policies and technological enhancements aimed at streamlining production processes.

Verona, 23rd March 2026 – REVO Insurance, the leading Italian operator specializing in parametric policies and special risks for SMEs and professionals, has been awarded an upgrade in its SER rating to “EE+” (very strong) by Standard Ethics, an independent international sustainability rating agency.

In its report, Standard Ethics highlighted the processes leading to the design and implementation of new insurance solutions, as well as pricing mechanisms that combine generative artificial intelligence with human expertise. The agency recognized and positively assessed REVO's commitment, as outlined in the 2026-2028 Business Plan “THE TECHUMAN ERA.” This commitment is reflected in initiatives—including the adoption of human and labor rights policies, diversity and inclusion strategies, and a supplier code of conduct—aligned with the core sustainability guidelines promoted by the UN, OECD, and EU.

“We welcome this assessment with great satisfaction, particularly as it comes less than a year after the presentation of our Business Plan, which sets out a concrete and structured commitment to ESG matters. Our goal is to continue creating sustainable value for all stakeholders by leveraging technological innovation while ensuring an increasingly advanced and high-quality work environment for our people.” commented Andrea Beltratti, Chairman of REVO Insurance.

The composition of the Board of Directors was also positively evaluated, being majority independent and having achieved gender parity. Finally, by the end of the 2026 financial year, ESG reporting—already initiated during the previous year in accordance with the voluntary VSME standard—is expected to be completed.
