

Navam Welihinda

Chief Financial Officer

LinkedIn →

Navam Welihinda is the Chief Financial Officer at Grammarly. He leads the global finance and corporate development organizations, focusing on the operational rhythms, teams, systems, and processes that support business growth.

Before joining Grammarly, Navam served as the CFO of HashiCorp, where he led the finance organization during the company's successful initial public offering in December 2021. Prior to his role at HashiCorp, Navam was the VP of Finance at Compose.io, which was acquired by IBM in 2015. Before starting his career with startups in Silicon Valley, Navam worked on the technology investment side, focusing on growth equity and leveraged buyouts at Insight Venture Partners, American Capital Strategies, and Sierra Ventures.

Navam holds an AB in Computer Science from Dartmouth College.