Housing Market Trends

Southern Maryland housing market in low gear this fall. After a relative strong summer market, higher mortgage rates and economic uncertainty are headwinds to housing market activity in the Southern Maryland region. There were just 347 home sales in October, an 18.9% decline compared to October 2025. New purchase contracts were down 13.8% year-over-year and showing activity fell by 5.4%. There was a significant pullback in buyer activity in October in all three counties in the Southern Maryland region.

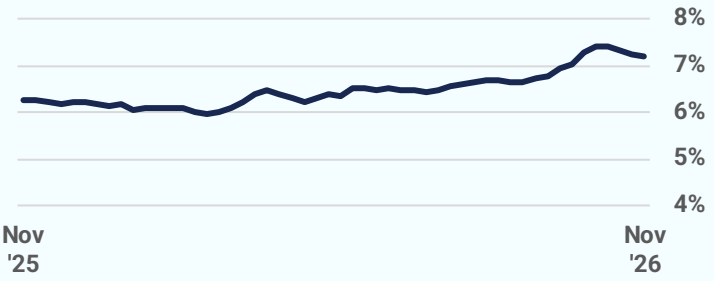

Sellers listed 544 homes in October, which was 3.4% lower than the number of new listings a year ago. Despite fewer new listings, active inventory at the end of the month climbed by 27.1% as sellers outnumbered buyers.

Homes are taking longer to sell. The median days on market in October was 27, four days slower than last year at this time. The median sold price was $449,000, virtually unchanged from a year ago.

Market Outlook

Expect housing market activity in the Southern Maryland region to be sluggish through the end of the year. Elevated mortgage rates and affordability constraints are headwinds in the market. Many buyers are on the sidelines, hoping for better conditions in 2027. Price growth will slow as buyers have more leverage and sellers reset price expectations.
