Linesight offers me the opportunity to undertake a full-time role and gain experience, while allowing me the work-life balance to pursue a part-time Master's degree – for me, it's the culmination of the ideal circumstances to grow one's career.

“

As someone with limited construction experience prior to starting the MSc in Quantity Surveying, the opportunity to learn from colleagues with a wealth of experience and see topics the course covers in a practical sense in my day-to-day role has been invaluable.”

Holly Sheahan,
Assistant Cost Manager

Our culture

Our drive to go beyond and proven ability to deliver, together with our commitment to cultivating meaningful relationships is what sets us apart.

We recognise that how we run our business, how we lead, how we communicate, and most importantly, the long-term and meaningful relationships that we build, have been critical to our success.

As a business, we want to be intentional in maintaining and working within the principles of our distinctive culture. This is what sets us apart.

Our operating principles

One Linesight, One team

“

The APC support that Linesight offers during the graduate programme has been hugely beneficial – I have constant opportunities for on-the-job learning, as well as more formal supports in place to work towards my chartership, including trained, in-house supervisors and counsellors, and scheduled check-ins. ”

Qin Yun Wong,
Assistant Cost Manager

Our early careers pathways

Linesight offers opportunities to students and graduates of quantity surveying and construction management courses.

We also have a range of great career pathways for people with mechanical and electrical backgrounds who are interested in the construction industry.

Our apprenticeship pathway caters for people who are interested in an 'earn while you learn' option – this can suit a broad range of people, from mature students with a construction industry background or interest, to students directly from school who seek to enter employment right away while still pursuing additional studies.

“

At Linesight, you immediately get the sense that it is an organisation where everyone is accepted and their value acknowledged, regardless of background or seniority. People seem inherently kind and approachable, so you feel comfortable asking for support or guidance. ”

Robin Willems,
Assistant Project Manager

Why Linesight?

Culture (DE&I, CSR, Social)

Our regional DE&I teams and Employee Resource Groups produce a variety of engaging learning opportunities throughout the year, as part of our commitment to true inclusivity and diversity. We have regional CSR teams in place around the globe who work with local organisations/organizations to provide support through fundraising and volunteering, and have a positive impact in the communities in which we work.

Flexibility

We offer flexible working options; hybrid home-office and/or client sites. Ultimately, this flexibility aims to maintain a work-life balance for our team members.

Mobility

At Linesight, internal mobility is actively encouraged, and there are many opportunities to travel to client sites when working from one of our main offices, or the ability to work on a client site in a new location for project durations.

Career progression

Supporting career progression, and personal and professional development are key priorities at Linesight. We invest in our people in a range of ways to support them in excelling in their role and chosen field.
