Grand Canyon, Bryce & Zion

Iconic Vistas & Magical Light—Discover the Red Rock Wonders of the American Southwest

Standing on the edge of the Grand Canyon, searching the shadowy depths for the silver ribbon of the Colorado River thousands of feet below, we are overcome by wonder at our own tiny instant in geological history. The canyon's sedimentary layers, stacked more than a mile thick, are a calendar for the millennia, formed by the erosive power of water and wind over eons. While this region is known as Red Rock Country, the canyon walls glow gold, rose, rust and violet, ever-changing as the high desert light works its magic. No less moving are neighboring Bryce and Zion, whose pink pinnacles and soaring sandstone ramparts round out this trio of famed Southwest national parks. Explore highlights and hidden corners of all three on this classic Western nature adventure, guided by natural history experts.

Day 1

St. George

Set out for Bryce, Zion and the Grand Canyon

- Begin in the red rock country of St. George on the Colorado Plateau
- Join your Expedition Leader and fellow travelers for a welcome dinner

Our canyonlands adventure begins in the red rock country of St. George, Utah. This evening, gather for a welcome dinner at a local restaurant. Our Expedition Leader offers a brief orientation to the history, geology, wildlife and ecology of the Colorado Plateau, which we explore in depth on our foray through three of the world's most magnificent national parks.

Day 2

Snow Canyon State Park / Bryce Canyon National Park

From Snow Canyon's sandstone cliffs to Bryce's dark night skies

- Explore Snow Canyon's petrified dunes and Navajo Sandstone cliffs of cream, pink and rust
- See Bryce Canyon's natural amphitheaters crowded with pink hoodoos hundreds of feet tall
- Stargaze through telescopes with a Dark Sky Ranger beneath thousands of stars

En route to Bryce Canyon, we stop at Snow Canyon State Park, contained within the larger Red Cliffs Desert Reserve established to protect the federally listed desert tortoise. Spanning 7,400 acres, the park encompasses ancient lava flows and soaring cliffs in a strikingly colorful desert environment. Vertical walls of Navajo sandstone rise in layers of cream, pink and rust above a landscape streaked with contrasting black basalt. Sculpted by wind and water over millennia, the canyon reveals petrified dunes, twisting slot canyons and pockets of desert varnish that shimmer in the sun, along with resilient desert plants like yucca, prickly pear and juniper.

Later this afternoon, we reach Bryce Canyon. The national park was established in 1925 to protect and draw visitors to its fantastical landscape, which feels like a portal to another world. Its pink pinnacles, limestone formations and natural amphitheaters capture the imagination with geological surprises. Red rock walls are rent with deep channels while whimsical hoodoos—rock spires carved eons ago by erosion—rise hundreds of feet into the sky. Rising early to watch the sunrise and lingering over radiant sunsets, experience the ever-changing grandeur of this astounding landscape.

After dark, another wonder awaits: a chance for some of the best stargazing in North America. The night skies around Bryce are some of the darkest in the United States, thanks to the park's high elevation above 8,000 feet, its remote location, and its clear, clean air. Joined by a Dark Sky Ranger, we head just outside the park bounds, away from any artificial light, to witness the night sky through telescopes. Offering an extraordinary view of the cosmos, Bryce holds International Dark Sky status, and the absence of light pollution reveals more than 7,500 stars on a clear night, while the Milky Way arcs in a luminous band across the dark tableau overhead. During a new moon, the sight is otherworldly, as planets, constellations and distant galaxies seem close enough to touch.

Day 3

Bryce Canyon National Park

Descend below Bryce Canyon's rim among hoodoos and pinyon pines

- Follow switchbacks 550 feet below the rim with your Expedition Leader
- Walk among pinyon pines and junipers deep in the canyon
- Look across the natural amphitheater and its maze of eroded hoodoos

Today we discover Bryce Canyon on foot, the only way to explore its intricate sedimentary depths at close range. Guided by our Expedition Leader, drop below the rim on a series of switchbacks that descend 550 feet into the lower canyon, where we find pinyon pines and junipers. Heading back up again, gain a different perspective on the forest of hoodoos as we weave among their unique shapes (Guests who don't wish to tackle the elevation gain can walk the paved trails on the rim.) In the afternoon, more opportunities await to explore Bryce from different vantage points, including a panorama across the vast landscape of the natural amphitheater crowded with hoodoos.

Day 4

Bryce Canyon / Zion National Park

Watch sunrise over Bryce before entering Zion Canyon

- See morning light move across the pink pinnacles and cliffs of Bryce Canyon
- Pass Checkerboard Mesa on the drive to Zion, watching for bighorn sheep
- Follow the Virgin River beneath Zion's towering sandstone walls

Given our optimal location near the rim, it's easy to rise early to watch the sunrise over Bryce Canyon. We witness a striking array of colors as the changing light illumines the stone pinnacles and sheer cliffs. A morning hike offers yet more angles on this wondrous landscape, more evocative with each turn in the trail.

Then it's time to head for Zion National Park on one of the most scenic drives in the American Southwest. Keep an eye out for bighorn sheep as we follow the narrow two-lane road that cuts through canyons and twists below towering monoliths. As we approach Zion, we pass Checkerboard Mesa, a 6,250-foot landmark of striated Navajo Sandstone. Early Mormon pioneers gave Zion its name—so striking was its beauty that it evoked images of the biblical Promised Land. The U.S. government agreed and made it a national park in 1919. Multi-hued sandstone ramparts rise above the valley floor where the Virgin River flows among the cottonwoods, carving a deep canyon over millennia and blending lush greenery with dramatic rockscapes.

Day 5

Zion National Park

Hike Zion Canyon and fly above the mesas beyond the park

- Walk beneath 2,000-foot Navajo Sandstone cliffs and past hanging gardens
- Look for canyon wrens, golden eagles and prairie falcons along the Virgin River
- Fly by helicopter over Kolob Canyons, Smith Mesa and Red Butte Mountain

Begin the day exploring Zion Canyon on foot, following narrow trails below 2,000-foot cliffs of Navajo Sandstone that soar above us on either side. On the canyon floor, see lush and colorful hanging gardens growing out of the rock. Trails along the river lead to quiet recesses, where we may hear and see many birds unique to the American West. Listen for the haunting cry of canyon wrens, look to the skies overhead for golden eagles and prairie falcons, and find American dippers and phoebes in the willows along the riverbanks. Then climb higher for dramatic views of the towering canyon walls and shadowy depths below. Varied overlooks reveal different vantage points on Zion's geological drama, as we witness the tremendous power of water and wind to sculpt this landscape, a highlight of our visit is a helicopter flight just outside Zion National Park, featuring aerial views of dramatic scenery including Smith Mesa, Kolob Canyons and Red Butte Mountain.

Day 6

Kaibab Plateau / Grand Canyon National Park

Cross the Kaibab Plateau to the Grand Canyon

- Travel across high desert shaped by ancient seas and volcanic activity
- Reach the Grand Canyon, where the Colorado River cuts through 278 miles of the Colorado Plateau
- Learn why 11 tribal communities hold this canyon and its billion-year-old rock sacred

Reflecting the adage that travel is more about the journey than the destination, our long drive today takes us through some of the most geologically dramatic landscapes of the American Southwest. As we leave the soaring red cliffs of Zion behind, the terrain gradually opens into high desert plains dotted with juniper and sagebrush. Traversing the vast Kaibab Plateau, we make numerous stops while exploring a landscape shaped by ancient seas and volcanic activity. The colors shift constantly—from rust-colored rock formations to wide, windswept mesas and deep canyons carved over millennia. By the time we reach the pine forests surrounding the Grand Canyon, we feel steeped in timeless natural history.

One of America's most iconic national parks, Grand Canyon was established in 1919. Lying entirely within the state of Arizona, the park encompasses 278 miles of the Colorado River and adjacent Colorado Plateau. Located on the ancestral homelands of 11 tribal communities that hold the space sacred, Grand Canyon is one of the most spectacular examples of erosion anywhere on Earth. Humans have lived in the Grand Canyon region for 25,000 years, a mere blip in time compared to the 1.7 billion-year-old Vishnu Schist rocks visible along the Colorado River in the bottom of the canyon. Once we check in to our hotel near the South Rim late this afternoon, we gather for dinner and an orientation to all that lies ahead as we delve into the canyon's wonders.

Day 7

Grand Canyon / South Rim

Sunrise to starlight over the mile-deep Grand Canyon

- Watch dawn light move across the canyon from a South Rim viewpoint
- Hike quieter trails with an Expedition Leader who knows how to avoid the crowds
- Stargaze beneath the protected night skies of Grand Canyon National Park after a farewell dinner

No western adventurer should miss gazing into the mile-deep chasm in the ethereal light of sunrise, and we join our Expedition Leader to greet the dawn's rays at a stirring viewpoint. With a full day ahead to explore the Grand Canyon from the South Rim, there's plenty of time to absorb the drama of one of the planet's most magnificent natural landscapes, watching the variegated canyon walls change color as the light shifts throughout the day. Sunset will likewise bring astonishment as we watch the canyon depths shift from orange and rust to pink and purple, as the sinking sun casts its glow in contrast with the shadows moving across the etched promontories and crevasses.

We spend the day on several mellow hikes, tapping the deep knowledge of our Expedition Leader who knows the best trails and viewpoints for a more secluded encounter with this extraordinary geological phenomenon. Admire vistas from several different spots along the rim and just below, doing our best to enjoy moments of relative solitude away from crowds. As the sun begins to set, we share a farewell dinner together on the South Rim. Then step outside once night falls for a last chance to stargaze: Grand Canyon National Park was recognized as an International Dark Sky Park in 2019, after a three-year endeavor to protect its night skies by altering light fixtures and taking measures to reduce light pollution.

Day 8

Grand Canyon / Flagstaff

One last Grand Canyon sunrise before departing from Flagstaff

- Watch a final sunrise over the Grand Canyon before breakfast
- Drive to Flagstaff for homeward flights

Rise at dawn for a last sunrise over the Grand Canyon before we depart after breakfast. Our high desert adventure concludes with a drive to Flagstaff, Arizona, the southern gateway to the Grand Canyon. A transfer to the airport is included to meet departing flights this afternoon. If your schedule permits, you may wish to explore a bit of this walkable city on your own. Surrounded by pine forests at 7,000 feet in the northern Arizona high country, Flagstaff's historic downtown is a lively mix of cafes, pubs, locavore dining, art galleries and funky boutiques.

Please note: This itinerary is subject to change, as departures may visit Grand Canyon, Zion and Bryce in a different order than what is outlined above. Your precise itinerary will be communicated to you once your trip dates are confirmed.

See the Corners, Colors & Characters Most Visitors Miss

Grand Canyon, Bryce & Zion

While travelers may be familiar with the sweeping panoramas and fantastic formations of Bryce, Zion and the Grand Canyon, few get to experience these iconic national parks off the typical track. Relegated to bus tours or navigating crowded park roads in your own vehicle, along with heavily traveled trails, most visitors miss a quieter encounter with the Southwest's magnificent monuments, including secret spots revealed by our in-the-know guides. Here's what makes our approach better:

1. Experience All the Wonder & None of the Hassle

   Zion, Bryce and Grand Canyon are some of America's most popular parks, globally coveted destinations. It's imperative to book accommodations months out, and in-demand park lodges often fill within hours of space made available annually. Most visitors end up fighting to see the sights with hundreds of other visitors, juggling brochures, maps and guidebooks. When you travel with us, you'll worry about none of that: we arrange the best places to stay, provide outstanding interpretation, and show you hidden corners of the parks via our "insider" knowledge.

2. Small Groups Led by Two Expedition Leaders

   Our trips are limited to 13 travelers. Each is guided by two Expedition Leaders, for the utmost in flexibility, quiet nature encounters and personalized service. We divide into even smaller groups, traveling in two vehicles that can access places buses can't reach, while providing the opportunity to pursue different activities to suit varying physical ability levels.

3. Private Helicopter Flightseeing in the Zion Region

   Gain a rare and thrilling perspective on dramatic canyons and geological formations just outside Zion National Park, including Smith Mesa, Kolob Canyons and Red Butte Mountain, on a 20-minute private helicopter flight covering 35 miles. Our swift aircraft flies low enough for an exhilarating view on the intricate landscapes below, offering panoramic vistas you can't get on the ground.

4. Dark Sky Experience in Bryce Canyon

   Bryce Canyon, like the other two parks we visit, holds International Dark Sky designation. Once night falls, we head out with a Dark Sky Ranger to view an astonishing array of glittering stars under some of the darkest night skies on Earth, viewing planets, constellations and galaxies through high-powered telescopes.

5. A More Intimate Experience of the Grand Canyon

   At every turn, we aim for a quieter experience of the Grand Canyon. While crowds are often inevitable, our Expedition Leaders know the secret trails and less-visited overlooks, and we take advantage of the early morning hours to greet the sunrise and enjoy more serene experience on the rim.

6. Take Part in Both Classic and One-of-a-Kind Activities

   Of course we include coveted highlights, like viewing the Grand Canyon from iconic rim overlooks and walking along the Virgin River in Zion, but we also add more unusual sights and pursuits that most visitors don't have access to. Our Expedition Leaders are intimately familiar with this region and introduce you to the crannies, cultures and local characters that make it truly come alive.

Ready to Book? Call an Adventure Specialist at 800-543-8917

7 Enjoy Personal Interactions with Local Residents

While the geology of the Southwest is the greatest draw of canyon country, the human history of the region is also fascinating. From Native Americans to Mormon pioneers, from cowboys to river runners, explorers and settlers of the canyons have inspired their fellow humans for eons. You'll get to meet some of the local people who have a history here—and a few stories to tell.

8 Chase the Best Light for Dramatic Vistas and Photography

The overhead sunlight is a dominant midday feature in the desert Southwest. But it doesn't make for the best views of canyon country, let alone photos. That's why we pursue light conditions that enhance the geological drama we've come to see. We rise early to catch the first rays of dawn bathing the rock formations in a vermilion glow. As the morning sun climbs, it reveals a shifting palette that transforms the natural bridges, cliffs and canyon walls. And we linger at sunset, watching the colors glow, deepen and fade.

9 Nat Hab's Exclusive North America Safari Cruisers Enhance Viewing

Our North America Safari Cruisers are customized luxury vans that are exceptionally comfortable and equipped with either a pop-top roof or wide roof hatches that open for unimpeded sightseeing and photography. Designed for exploring America's national parks, they offer the best of both necessities: an expedition-ready exterior and a spacious, luxurious interior for the ultimate in comfort. We never fill them to capacity, so every guest gets a window seat plus plenty of room for your personal belongings.

10 Stay in the Most Coveted Locations

We select the most atmospheric inns and lodges for their ambience, history and proximity to nature (ask for details re: specific hotels on your chosen departure date, which may vary). Staying at inns that are a classic part of national park heritage adds to your experience—and you don't have to scramble for reservations, which are almost impossible to get on your own.

11 Our Guides Know Canyon Country Intimately

With decades of collective experience, our naturalist guides know where to find the "paths less traveled" for wildlife watching and striking views. They have secret spots where we can avoid the swarms of tourists that besiege the parks' most crowded locations, and they'll inform you about every aspect of the region's wildlife, geology, natural history and Indigenous cultures. With lots of surprises up their sleeves, our Expedition Leaders share a side of Canyon Country most visitors miss. See Expedition Leader bios with traveler comments regarding the quality of our leaders.

12 Our Quality-Value Guarantee Ensures an Exceptional Canyons Experience

With Natural Habitat Adventures, you receive our exclusive guarantee that clearly states that we will meet the high expectations we set forth in our promotional materials. To our knowledge, this is the most ambitious guarantee made by any adventure travel company. Read our important promise.

13 Feel Good About Your Carbon-Neutral Journey

We care deeply about our planet, as we know you do. When you travel with us, the carbon emissions from your trip are 100% offset—including your round-trip flights from home. Natural Habitat Adventures has been the world's first carbon-neutral travel company since 2007.

14

Natural Habitat Adventures Is World Wildlife Fund's Travel Partner

Because of our commitment to environmentally friendly travel, as well as the exceptional quality of our small-group nature adventures, World Wildlife Fund, the world's leading environmental conservation organization, has named Natural Habitat Adventures its worldwide travel partner—a designation that makes us exceedingly proud!
