I have a lot of things to be thankful for, including my bronze medal. But I’m most thankful for the liver transplant that saved my life. The transplant medication I take lowers my immune system, which puts me at a higher risk for skin cancer. So, every day I apply sunscreen and wear sun protective clothing to help prevent skin cancer. My name is Chris Klug and I’m wearing orange to help put a spotlight on skin cancer.

Did you know snow reflects and intensifies the damaging rays of the sun? Sun exposure is the most preventable risk factor for skin cancer. To protect your skin, apply sunscreen, seek shade and wear protective clothing. Visit SpotSkinCancer.org.
