Hector Robinson, Candidate for District 35 City Council Seat

PPUABA is inviting the candidates for the upcoming City Council District 35 primary election to speak at our meetings. The primary election is scheduled for June 24th, and the winner of the Democratic Party primary is likely to win the general election in November. PPUABA does not endorse candidates, but we encourage neighbors to get involved in the political process and act on the issues in the neighborhood. Tonight's candidate speaker, Hector Robinson and his wife are residents of District 35. He is a lawyer, a longtime Crown Heights advocate and the descendant of Jamaican and Panamanian parents. He is committed to public and community service. He founded the Washington Avenue Botanic Block Association and the Crown Heights Community Council.

He shared his personal and professional achievements, highlighting his work in the pharmaceutical industry and his ability to take advantage of opportunities to further his education and career. He was inspired to enter public service by seeing that the needs of people in his community were not being met and the following are his positions on various issues:

- He would deal with housing affordability by review the ULURP process and how the city manages its land. He feels landlords building luxury housing are favored while there is a need for affordable housing, market rate housing and housing for the homeless. There should be a top down review of the needs for different kinds of housing and planning for where to build the housing.
- He feels that food insecurity is an issue and he would support food pantries which provide food to those in needs.
- He also thinks public education needs funding from the state to provide things such as internet service.
- He is also concerned with public safety and would increase patrols in higher crime areas.
- He supports the rights of retirees of NYC to keep their current benefits.
- He does not support the plan for installing a skate park in Mount Prospect Park.
- Regarding a question on safety of e-bikes, he says that bikes should obey traffic rules. He feels legislation is needed and perhaps bikes should have insurance or license plates.
- If he is elected, he will have more public presence than the current incumbent, who he says doesn't talk to her constituents.
- He would also advocate more planning of infrastructure as large buildings are being built in the district. He favors the use of data to make better decisions.

Teddy invited Hector to attend our Block Party to meet more of the people in our neighborhood and thanked him for coming to speak to us.
