

Core Sectors: Capacity / Feasibility Studies

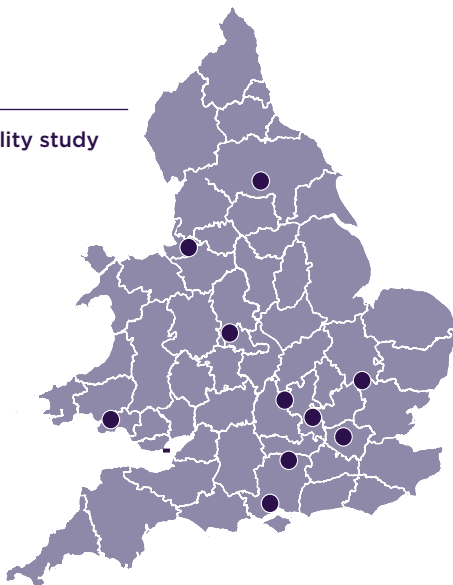

“The urban design team are experienced at assessing urban brownfield sites for development potential. We work closely with our in-house surveying teams to determine development briefs and test design solutions which optimise value and give clear guidance for next steps through feasibility and capacity studies”

We undertake technical analysis of urban sites to identify opportunities and constraints for development, including townscape character studies. Working closely with Carter Jonas' planning and development teams we define briefs for sites which are both planning and commercially focussed. We produce masterplans, supporting massing studies and accommodation schedules to test capacity. Our information is often utilised as part of feasibility study documents advising clients on the development potential of their assets.
