

A rewarding career is within reach

PGE Design Project Manager careers

Looking for a career path to recommend to aspiring professionals? Consider introducing them to the role of a Design Project Manager (DPM) at PGE.

This role is perfect for individuals who enjoy solving problems, staying organized and making a real difference in their community. As a DPM, they'll have the unique opportunity to see their designs come to life – building the infrastructure that powers thriving communities. With just a few weeks of paid training, a DPM can begin an exciting, well-paying career.

KEY DETAILS:

- Starting salary range: $75,000 – $82,000 annually.
- Education/training requirements:
  - Bachelors degree or high school diploma along with experience in customer service or people-focused fields like retail or teaching.
  - Strong skills in project management, organization, time management, resourcefulness, computer literacy and a tech-savvy mindset.
  - Demonstrate strong ability to work with others to build trust and effectively support projects.

1

PGE job opening

Successful candidates are hired as entry level DPMs.

2

DPM training

New DPMs participate in a six-week onboarding training and continued professional learning.

3

Ongoing support

DPMs are paired with mentors for a six-month ramp-up program with the PGE Internal Design group.

4

Career development

DPMs are provided ongoing personal guidance on career paths and promotion.

Join us and turn ideas into action, dreams into design and power into progress. Search for job openings at portlandgeneral.com/dpm.

