

Did you know you can cash in your Clean Fuel Credits?

What are Clean Fuel Credits?

When you own and operate an EV charger, whether it's for your fleet, your employees or the public, you generate Clean Fuel Credits through the Oregon Clean Fuels Program. These credits can be sold to generate revenue for your business.

How can I cash in my credits?

The Oregon Clean Fuels Program is complex and administratively burdensome. The process involves equipment registration, credit aggregation, claiming, transferring, tracking and reporting for base credits, incremental credits, advance credits, and on and on. The good news is, we do this every day and can manage the process for you.

What's the cost for this service?

There is a nominal fee for this service that allows you to cash in on your Clean Fuel Credits without doing all the work yourself.

To learn more and explore participation, just fill out the simple online CFC revenue interest form at portlandgeneral.com/cfc or email us at cfcvenue@pgn.com to get started.

PGE is here to help

If your business has qualified EV chargers, we can help you turn those credits your chargers earn into additional revenue for your business. We are experts in how Oregon's Clean Fuels Program works — we've been doing it with our own network of chargers for years — and can handle all of the backend administration for you.

Your chargers earn the credits

We do the paperwork

You receive quarterly checks and transaction detail for the money earned from the sale of your credits

We'll even submit an annual report to the DEQ, and you'll receive a copy so you can document your carbon emission reductions.