Development Zones in Asian Borderlands

Development Zones in Asian Borderlands maps the nexus between global capital flows, national economic policies, infrastructural connectivity, migration, and aspirations for modernity in the borderlands of South and South-East Asia. In doing so, it demonstrates how these are transforming borderlands from remote, peripheral backyards to front-yards of economic development and state-building. Development zones encapsulate the networks, institutions, politics and processes specific to enclave development, and offer a new analytical framework for thinking about borderlands; namely, as sites of capital accumulation, territorialisation and socio-spatial changes.

BIOGRAPHY

Mona Chettri is a Next Generation Network Scholar at the Australia-India Institute, University of Western Australia.

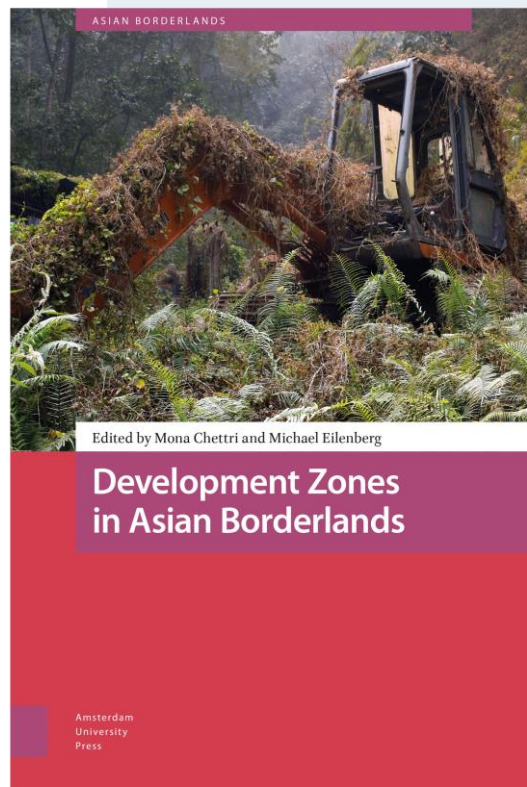

Michael Eilenberg is Associate Professor of Anthropology at Aarhus University, Denmark.

"Theoretically ambitious and empirically rich, this volume shows how development zones are much more than sites of capital accumulation. An original and important contribution to our understanding of borderland lives in South and Southeast Asia."

– Madeleine Reeves, author of Border Work: Spatial Lives of the State in Rural Central Asia

"Simultaneously wide-ranging and focused, Development Zones in Asian Borderlands traces the transformation of borderlands in South and Southeast Asia into a diverse array of official, de facto, and informal development zones."

– Emily T. Yeh, Professor of Geography, University of Colorado Boulder
