The Modern Customer 360: Access for All to Complete Customer Profiles

“What’s holding us back? Data silos! Fragmented data caused by fragmented organizations leading to a fragmented customer experience.”

Reaching & using inaccessible customer data

Business leaders are on a mission to drive growth from customer-centric, data-driven business strategies. And this requires data – holistic and ready-to-use customer data, accessible to all the teams and systems that need it. But for most brands, customer data remains trapped in siloed systems. Customer profiles are still fragmented. And the monolithic integration projects that aim to solve for this are painfully slow, costly, and rigid – and worse, fail to deliver most of the time.

The result? Personalization efforts flounder. Audiences can’t be reached. Analysts can’t unearth basic insights about the customer. Attribution is impossible. Frustrated teams operate as disjointed units, lacking the data they need for success. Brands need a modern customer data solution – one that’s fast to set up, delivers on business leaders short-term goals, and meets the sophisticated, long-term demands of the enterprise.

CASE STUDY

CHALLENGE

The retailer wanted to understand their customers and deliver the right offers and messages in every channel. But with only 50% of their customer data accessible and a 7 to 10-day lag from when data was created to when it could be analyzed and used, the team was stuck delivering the blast and batch communications of the past.

SOLUTION

In 18 weeks, the brand deprecated their legacy Epsilon solution and replaced it with a fully unified and connected Customer 360 view powered by Amperity, with 100+ unique attributes on every profile that is refreshed daily. These profiles are now syndicated daily across the enterprise, fueling advanced analytics, direct mail, marketing personalization, and more.
