Spain makes some of the world's best wines, and we have an amazing selection for you this month. Whether you like crisp, clean whites or big, bold reds, Spain makes just about every type of wine that will please even the most discerning palate. Spain is home to more vines than any other country on Earth, and has a national wine output exceeded only by France and Italy. Grape vines have been grown on the Iberian Peninsula since at least 3000 B.C., although it was not until 1000 B.C. that winemaking began here in earnest – a skill brought by Phoenician traders from the eastern Mediterranean.
