

ORKIN® STORED PRODUCT PEST CONTROL

Stored product pests (SPP) may be small, but the damage they cause can be substantial. Infesting everything from grains and spices to packaged goods, these pests can threaten your products, reputation, regulatory compliance and bottom line. That's why Orkin® offers a tailored Stored Product Pest program that works alongside your greater Integrated Pest Management (IPM) program to proactively monitor and help minimize infestation risks.

Orkin's IPM Approach:

Inspection. Evaluation of your facility and inventory to identify potential SPP entry points, attractants, product vulnerabilities or existing infestations.

Treatment. If applicable, recommended treatment for existing infestations is applied. Whether proactive or reactive, recommended equipment is installed to monitor and help reduce and prevent SPP infestations.

Tailored Action Plan: Your Orkin Pro™ will create a customized action threshold and plan for your business and discuss plans and inspection findings with you.

Monitoring. Your Orkin Pro will analyze data collected, conduct ongoing inspections of your facility and monitoring devices and adjust as needed to ensure your program is as effective as possible.

Your Customized Stored Product Pest Program May Include:

Sanitation and Exclusion: Your Orkin Pro may compile and recommend a customized sanitation plan for your facility and exclusion products to seal off pest entry points to help minimize the risk of an SPP infestation.

Monitoring and Data Collection: Your Orkin Pro will set pheromone and sticky traps to help attract and consistently monitor SPP activity in high-risk areas, analyze the data and implement any program adjustments or take action according to the pre-determined action thresholds and plan.

Staff Training: Your Orkin Pro can help train your staff on where and how to look for signs of SPP activity, equipping your team with the necessary knowledge to help reduce SPP risks.

Targeted Control: When necessary, Orkin may use treatments if the infestation reaches elevated levels.

Don't let pests snack on your stock.
