

LIVE EXPORT PROMOTES ANIMAL WELFARE

.....

Around 99.9% of cattle exported from Australia arrive safely at their destination – a rate that has been maintained for more than a decade.

.....

Exporters are responsible for the welfare of livestock through to the point of slaughter, even after they are sold and arrive in other countries. This may include several months in a feedlot.

.....

Australia exports animal welfare along with the livestock, as those handling Australian animals are trained to meet our standards. This positive influence has led to other countries looking at laws to ensure local cattle are treated the same way.
