THE SILK ROAD: A JOURNEY OF FLAVOUR

Orient Restaurant pays tribute to one of history's most captivating chapters: the Silk Road. This ancient trade network connected distant corners of the world and evoked images of bustling markets, caravans laden with exotic goods, and a rich tapestry of cultures intermingling. Like the Silk Road, Orient combines diverse influences, where history and culinary artistry intertwine.

Stepping into Orient is akin to traversing the paths once trodden by traders and explorers. Picture the vibrant bazaars, where goods from distant lands were exchanged, and caravanserais provided rest for weary travellers. The Silk Road was a lifeline of exchange, where spices, silks, languages, ideas, and cultures found their way across continents.

Turkey stood as a vital corridor for the Silk Road in this grand journey. In the North, cities like Trabzon, Erzurum, and Sivas bore witness to this thriving trade, each leaving its unique mark on the cultural mosaic of the region. To the South, Mardin, Diyarbakir, and Antalya stood as vibrant hubs where a fusion of traditions and tastes took root. Today, the essence of these ancient cities finds a home in the culinary offerings of Orient.

Join us on this voyage, where every dish carries a piece of history. Let the Silk Road come alive on your plate, and allow the richness of history to unfold in every bite.

The caravan routes transporting silk, porcellains, paper, spices and precious stones from one continent to the other followed several itineraries in Asia before arriving in Anatolia, which served as a bridge linking it to Europe via the Thrace region. These caravan routes later acquired the name of silk roads and Anatolia constituted the crossroad of these routes. The major cities lying on the Silk Road Anatolia were:

In the North:

Trabzon - Gümüşhane - Erzurum - Sivas - Tokat - Amasya -
Kastamonu - Adapazari - Izmit - Istanbul - Edirne

In the South:

Mardin - Diyarbakir - Adiyaman - Malatya - Kahramanmaras -
Kayseri - Nevsehir - Konya - Isparta - Antalya - Denizli
