AMERICANO

First served in 1860s in Gaspare Campari's bar in Milan, this was originally known as the "Milano-Torino" as Campari came from Milano and sweet vermouth from Torino. A bitter, fizzy, long refreshing drink, which you will love if you like Campari

NEGRONI

James Bond drank a Negroni when he wasn't in the mood for a martini, and when Orson Welles tried his first one in 1947 commented, "The bitters are excellent for your liver, the gin is bad for you. They balance each other ". Bitter and dry, but very tasty.

APEROL SPRITZ

Its origins date back to the end of 19th century when Venice was still part of the Austrian Empire. German soldier drank the local wines of Veneto in taverns where they were billeted but they often diluted these with water to achieve a similar alcohol content to beer they were more accustomed to drinking. Slightly sweet, herbal and refreshing.

MANHATTAN

James Bond drank a Negroni when he wasn't in the mood for a martini, and when Orson Welles tried his first one in 1947 commented, "The bitters are excellent for your liver, the gin is bad for you. They balance each other ". Bitter and dry, but very tasty.

INTERNATIONAL TOP 5 COCKTAILS

ESPRESSO MARTINI

Created in London during the 1980s by the late bartender Dick Bradsell, this cocktail began when a guest requested something that would "wake me up, then mess me up." A perfect union of vodka, coffee liqueur, and freshly brewed espresso, it delivers rich aroma, creamy texture, and a subtle sweetness. A modern classic — bold, elegant, and the ultimate after-dinner indulgence.

WHISKEY SOUR

The 'sour' part of the cocktail obviously it's the usage of lime or lemon mixed in with the drink, It is said that Vice Admiral Edward Vernon of England used to mix various ingredients together to serve his crew of sailors And to prevent scurvy, the sailors always had large rations of limes and lemons. To protect himself from having a ship full of intoxicated sailors, the ViceAdmiral watered down the liquor with lime juice which also masked the flavor. That's the beginning of the "sour". Smooth with a hint of citrus sourness and an invigorating blast of whiskey

MARGARITA

Margarita is the Spanish word for 'daisy'. And it's probable that the Margarita cocktail is simply a tequila-based Daisy - a style of drink made with citrus juice, sweetened with a syrup or liqueur, and fortified with a base spirit that date back to Victorian times. Tangy citrus and tequila with a hint of balancing sweetness and a faint of salty undertone. We also prefer the subtlety of half a pinch of salt in the drink to a salt laden glass rim.

SIDECAR

It was invented at a bar in Paris during World War I and was named after the motorcycle sidecar in which the good captain cus tomarily was driven to and from the little bistro where the drink was born and christened. Essentially it is nothing but a Daiquiri with brandy in the place of rum, and Cointreau in the place of sugar syrup. Complex and balanced but still a 'sour'. Those with a sweet tooth may prefer with a sugar rim.

DRY MARTINI

A chilled crystal glass; the purest Gin or Vodka; a touch of Vermouth vigorously stirred. The only addition is an olive or a lemon twist. Today a Martini is almost holly made up of gin or vodka, so your choice of brand is vital to the proceeding.
