Shared beliefs

Technology with heart and mind

- Analytical thinking: We love problems. We enjoy thinking through and dissecting them. We analyze and recognize potential while developing and exploring solutions. We take on challenges and achieve results as a team.
- Progress through continuous development: We strive to consistently improve and always try to find the local optimum for each situation. We are constantly looking for new opportunities, seek to avoid waste and do not shy away from a challenge.
- Sustainability through foresight: We think long term and do not limit ourselves to short-term results. We do not foster egotistic needs but focus on the common good.
- Lifelong learning: We are all students. We are all teachers. Natural curiosity and continuous development are part of our DNA. We learn as a team in and outside our Academy, in software development and beyond. We reflect together and continue to grow—as Mensch, team, and organization.

End-user focus

- Human-centric: Software development is not an end in itself. We measure our work as developers by the fact that our software ultimately helps and inspires people in real life.
- Holistic: We know that software is more than just code. Design, communication, language, accessibility, and usability are just as important as cost-effectiveness, maintainability and utility.
- Entrepreneurial: Good development never stops. With lean management and agile processes, we plan, build, and maintain software throughout its lifecycle. We follow this approach to ensure the best possible user experience. For today and tomorrow.

Teamwork and responsibility

- Teamwork: A good team is more than the sum of its parts. We believe in the value of intensive, personal collaboration. As directly and immediately as possible, using technology where necessary. Diversity and interdisciplinarity, exchange and synthesis enrich the result.
- Sportsmanship: We work as a team, supporting each other to do our best. Some days you're the strongest, some days you're not, but we always have each other's back.
- Responsibility: We take responsibility for our users and customers, for our team and our society, for our vision and our values.
