9. Conclusion

Oikotie has seen clear long-term success in its efforts to improve safety and proactively prevent the spread of illegal content on the platform.

The mandatory BankID verification for publishing listings has produced very positive results, significantly reducing abuse and fraud. Additionally, the ability to block the use of hashed social security numbers after violations has further strengthened our preventive measures.

While we are pleased with this progress, there is still work to be done. Even a single case of fraud is one too many, which is why we aim for zero tolerance by continuously developing our fraud prevention strategies. Close cooperation with authorities and industry players ensures we stay ahead of emerging threats.

We will continue to act proactively and decisively to keep the platform safe and trustworthy for all users.
