

[elevating music]

Growing up, certain things were expected of me
to be masculine and thick
and hard and rough.

But then going into my gender, doing research finding role models in drag queens and people that are breaking the gender norms, are binary
I found ways to express myself.

My gender is fluid,
it's always changing, it's dynamic. It's just about feeling good.
Right now I feel like a Goddess.

[elevating music]

My skin is my pride.
As soft and subtle as it is, bears all of the burden that I've had to work through to continue old me.
You know who you are. You know what's inside you, you know what you can do.
I'm loud and I'm proud. Amen. Hallelujah.

[elevating music]

My skin. My way.
I'm my Venus.
