18	The Scarecrow lacks brains. The Tin Woodman lacks a heart. The Lion lacks courage.	3 marks
19	He attacks fiercely, knocking over the Scarecrow and trying to bite Toto, showing strength. But he admits he is afraid of everything, calls himself a coward, wipes away a tear, and seeks courage – revealing vulnerability.	2 marks
20	The Lion admits he is a coward and speaks openly about his fear. His dialogue is emotional and reflective, like when he says “It is my great sorrow,” and “I suppose I was born that way.” This helps the reader understand that he is ashamed and unhappy about his fear, even though he tries to appear brave.	4 marks
21	One theme is that appearances can be misleading – the Lion looks fierce but feels weak, the Scarecrow wants a brain even though he often shows wisdom, and the Tin Woodman believes he has no heart, yet shows deep compassion. The story suggests that true qualities come from within and that everyone has the potential to grow.	4 marks
