The Wonderful Wizard of Oz by L. Frank Baum

1 All this time Dorothy and her companions had been walking through the thick
2 woods. The road was still paved with yellow brick, but these were much covered
3 by dried branches and dead leaves from the trees, and the walking was not at all
4 good.

5 There were few birds in this part of the forest, for birds love the open country where 6 there is plenty of sunshine. But now and then there came a deep growl from some
7 wild animal hidden among the trees. These sounds made the little girl's heart beat
8 fast, for she did not know what made them; but Toto knew, and he walked close to 9 Dorothy's side, and did not even bark in return.

10 "How long will it be," the child asked of the Tin Woodman, "before we are out of 11 the forest?"

12 "I cannot tell," was the answer, "for I have never been to the Emerald City. But
13 my father went there once, when I was a boy, and he said it was a long journey
14 through a dangerous country, although nearer to the city where Oz dwells the 15 country is beautiful. But I am not afraid so long as I have my oil-can, and nothing
16 can hurt the Scarecrow, while you bear upon your forehead the mark of the Good
17 Witch's kiss, and that will protect you from harm."

18 "But Toto!" said the girl anxiously. "What will protect him?"

19 "We must protect him ourselves if he is in danger," replied the Tin Woodman.

20 Just as he spoke there came from the forest a terrible roar, and the next moment a 21 great Lion bounded into the road. With one blow of his paw he sent the 22 Scarecrow spinning over and over to the edge of the road, and then he struck at 23 the Tin Woodman with his sharp claws. But, to the Lion's surprise, he could make no
24 impression on the tin, although the Woodman fell over in the road and lay still.

25 Little Toto, now that he had an enemy to face, ran barking toward the Lion, and
26 the great beast had opened his mouth to bite the dog, when Dorothy, fearing Toto
27 would be killed, and heedless of danger, rushed forward and slapped the Lion upon
28 his nose as hard as she could, while she cried out: "Don't you dare to bite Toto! You
29 ought to be ashamed of yourself, a big beast like you, to bite a poor little dog!"

30 "I didn't bite him," said the Lion, as he rubbed his nose with his paw where Dorothy 31 had hit it.

32 "No, but you tried to," she retorted. "You are nothing but a big coward."

33 "I know it," said the Lion, hanging his head in shame. "I've always known it. But how 34 can I help it?"

35 "I don't know, I'm sure. To think of your striking a stuffed man, like the poor
36 Scarecrow!"

37 "Is he stuffed?" asked the Lion in surprise, as he watched her pick up the Scarecrow
38 and set him upon his feet, while she patted him into shape again.

39 "Of course he's stuffed," replied Dorothy, who was still angry.

40 "That's why he went over so easily," remarked the Lion. "It astonished me to see him
41 whirl around so. Is the other one stuffed also?"

42 "No," said Dorothy, "he's made of tin." And she helped the Woodman up again.
43 "That's why he nearly blunted my claws," said the Lion. "When they scratched
44 against the tin it made a cold shiver run down my back. What is that little animal 45 you are so tender of?"
46 "He is my dog, Toto," answered Dorothy.
47 "Is he made of tin, or stuffed?" asked the Lion.
48 "Neither. He's a—a—a meat dog," said the girl.
49 "Oh! He's a curious animal and seems remarkably small, now that I look at him. No
50 one would think of biting such a little thing, except a coward like me," continued
51 the Lion sadly.
52 "What makes you a coward?" asked Dorothy, looking at the great beast in wonder,
53 for he was as big as a small horse.
54 "It's a mystery," replied the Lion. "I suppose I was born that way. All the other
55 animals in the forest naturally expect me to be brave, for the Lion is everywhere
56 thought to be the King of Beasts. I learned that if I roared very loudly every living
57 thing was frightened and got out of my way. Whenever I've met a man I've been 58 awfully scared; but I just roared at him, and he has always run away as fast as he 59 could go. If the elephants and the tigers and the bears had ever tried to fight me,
60 I should have run myself – I'm such a coward; but just as soon as they hear me roar
61 they all try to get away from me, and of course I let them go."
62 "But that isn't right. The King of Beasts shouldn't be a coward," said the Scarecrow.
63 "I know it," returned the Lion, wiping a tear from his eye with the tip of his tail. "It is 64 my great sorrow, and makes my life very unhappy. But whenever there is danger,
65 my heart begins to beat fast."
66 "Perhaps you have heart disease," said the Tin Woodman.
67 "It may be," said the Lion.
68 "If you have," continued the Tin Woodman, "you ought to be glad, for it proves you
69 have a heart. For my part, I have no heart; so I cannot have heart disease."
70 "Perhaps," said the Lion thoughtfully, "if I had no heart I should not be a coward."
71 "Have you brains?" asked the Scarecrow.
72 "I suppose so. I've never looked to see," replied the Lion.
73 "I am going to the Great Oz to ask him to give me some," remarked the Scarecrow,
74 "for my head is stuffed with straw."
75 "And I am going to ask him to give me a heart," said the Woodman.
76 "And I am going to ask him to send Toto and me back to Kansas," added Dorothy.
77 "Do you think Oz could give me courage?" asked the Cowardly Lion.
