

Your Impact Through Infrastructure

Your global impact this financial year

Every night, there are children trying to fall asleep in homes that are not protected from wind, rain and cold. Many children are forced to learn under the dusty shade of trees or in classrooms without electricity or internet. Local churches are doing all they can to support children, but without basic infrastructure, they face limits to how much they can do.

Yet you didn’t look away from your neighbours.
You moved with compassion—and this is what changed.

Your compassion in action

Hear from your neighbours how your compassion has brought shelter to their community over the years.

A safe place to play in Haiti

For more than 20 years, this child development centre in southern Haiti has been a place where children can learn, play and discover the love of Jesus. But when an earthquake destroyed the centre in 2021, children lost one of their community's most important safe spaces.

Even then, staff found ways to keep serving children in temporary shelters while they waited for something more permanent.

Five years later, hope has a new home.

In February 2026, earthquake-resistant buildings opened their doors, bringing safe classrooms, an auditorium and sports facilities to the heart of the community.

"One of my greatest sources of pride is that today we not only have a school, but also an auditorium that serves both the centre and the entire community," says Paul, the centre director.

Today, children have more space to learn, play and develop their talents. And the whole community has a place to gather, grow and find hope.

The lights are back on in Malawi

In Malawi, a local church is a place of hope for children and families. But without electricity, serving the community was difficult.

Staff spent valuable time travelling to print documents, charge devices and find reliable internet. These everyday challenges took time and energy away from the centre's most important work: helping children learn, grow and thrive.

Now, solar panels are changing what's possible.

Reliable electricity means the centre can run smoothly, staff can stay connected and more time can be spent supporting children. Solar-powered internet has strengthened communication, while lights, laptops and printers can now work without interruption.

"We no longer worry about work disruption," says Dan, the centre director.

"Solar energy gave us back control of our mission. This is more than an infrastructure upgrade—it's a shift from survival mode to service mode."

"Hope and light go together; the solar power has empowered us and made work easy, as we conveniently work to serve the children in our community."

Now, the local church has the power to do more for the children it serves.

Thank you

Psalm 91:1 says, “Whoever dwells in the shelter of the Most High will rest in the shadow of the Almighty” (NIV).

Your gift has empowered local churches to become a practical reflection of the refuge God offers, allowing your global neighbours to know the peace that comes with safe and functional spaces.
