

Long-Term Stock Exchange announces July 18 and 25 weekend test sessions

Long-Term Stock Exchange (LTSE) is pleased to share that we will be supporting industry-wide testing on Saturday July 18 and Saturday July 25. Participants will be able to connect and test with the Exchange's production system. The Exchange anticipates commencing the trading of test securities shortly thereafter and will provide a more detailed timeline following the successful completion of industry testing.

Additionally, beginning July 13, LTSE will operate its production system during regular market hours (i.e., 9:30 am to 4:00 pm ET). The regular availability of the LTSE production system will allow members to test session connectivity, ensuring adequate time for preparedness. We are also supporting certification testing for member firms. To schedule a time for certification testing, please contact the LTSE Market Operations team.

We appreciate the challenges our community is facing in this environment and are grateful for the support from industry participants as we continue to explore the most responsible path to Exchange go-live. We will continue to provide visibility into our plans and set expectations going forward.
