

WEBINAR

Date: Tuesday, November 3, 2020

Time: 11:00 AM - 12:00 PM

Register: <http://ow.ly/ymnI50BDsCk>

Balancing Natural Resources & Conservation Work

Ian Fife will provide an unbiased point of view from the forestry sector and conservation to identify common grounds to protect and conserve forest birds and their habitat while maintaining one of Ontario's leading economic export. Among the many topics Ian will discuss are the importance of protecting nest sites and species at risk during the breeding season as well as protecting jobs that forests provide to many Ontarians, and how we can maintain a sustainable forest industry that is suitable for forest birds.

Speaker Bio

Ian has about 15 years of experience working primarily with birds throughout North America and began working with forest birds during his Masters research in 2012. As Birds Canada's Forest Birds Program Coordinator, Ian works with the forestry industry and on-the-ground forestry technicians to protect and conserve avian diversity and species at risk in the Carolinian region of southern Ontario.

