

The Best L.A. Hotel Lobbies to Just Hang out and Chill In

Who needs a room?

September 9, 2016 Kari Mozena Architecture, Nightlife 0 Comments

Sometimes the best part of a hotel isn't the sheets with impressive thread counts, the tricked out suites, or the warm cookies before bedtime (OK, that is nice). Sometimes the best part of a hotel is just hanging out in the lobby. Here are some fine places around L.A. to do just that.

Shutters On The Beach

Walk out of Casa Del Mar and a few steps up the sand you'll find Shutters. The tranquil, Cape Cod-esque hotel also has views of the ocean just outside its white-framed windows. Where Casa Del Mar's lobby is grand, Shutters' is cozy with low ceilings. The best part? The piano in the lobby and bar area where someone usually sits down to play around sevenish. If you are lucky, you'll pop in on a night when a hotel guest like Lang Lang is in town to play Disney Hall and sits down to practice.