

Forging Forward with Aptean Food & Beverage ERP

The food and beverage industry is becoming more complex and competitive every day, and businesses like yours are tasked with keeping up with consumer demands, safety regulations and sustainability efforts while maintaining a healthy bottom line. A unified, robust ERP solution can be an important ally in your efforts to succeed in this fast-moving marketplace.

Major Challenges Facing Food and Beverage Businesses

From tailoring your products to match the latest trends in consumer behavior and ensuring compliance with health standards to managing the traceability of all your ingredients and maintaining uncompromising quality, the list of crucial considerations for your food and beverage business is long.

If your offerings don't align with customers' desires, the profitability of your lines will suffer. Not paying proper attention to safety checks can result in stoppages, or worse, a lawsuit. And without full visibility over your materials, you risk unlabeled allergens ending up where they shouldn't be.

Our single, fully-integrated system—Aptean Food & Beverage ERP—gives you complete control over your supply chain and all pertinent data and helps you manage your processes and fine-tune them with intelligent analysis. Our solution is also designed to keep your business completely compliant with all health and safety regulations, giving you peace of mind.

Better yet, the visualizations our platform can provide are based on assessments of your metrics at an organizational level, leading to actionable insights that will empower you to act with agility and achieve results.

Key Benefits of Aptean Food & Beverage ERP

- › Total Supply Chain Visibility – Track your materials backward and forward along the supply chain while maintaining and updating all pertinent data tied to them. That includes attributes like country of origin, expiration date, grade, variety, packaging specifications and more.
- › Take Control of Food Safety and Compliance – Ensure that all products containing allergens are marked appropriately and that your other lines are free from contamination. Rest assured knowing our solution will keep your operations within all pertinent regulations and fully prepared in the event of an audit or recall.
- › Efficient Warehouse Operations – Enable flexible control and end-to-end management of your warehouse to optimize space, improve inventory accuracy and maximize throughput. Know exactly what materials are used in which lots and where your products are headed next. Maintain all necessary data with smart labels that facilitate quick scanning for accurate results.
- › Optimized Food Production Cycle – Gain control over your operations and better manage every step of production, from R&D and costing to planning and batch processing. Manage important documents in a convenient, accessible digital platform. Take advantage of intelligent forecasting systems that inform smart planning and production.
- › End-to-End Quality Control – Automate your consistency, temperature, size, shape and other quality checks with smart sensors. Implement quality score sheets to make sure everything coming off your lines meets expectations.
- › Real-time Insights – All facts and figures collected are updated immediately in the system, allowing you to identify errors quickly and resolve them. Get to the bottom of what's working and what's not with robust data visualizations. Make more informed decisions on the fly, capitalizing on openings in the marketplace and improving or replacing underperforming products.
- › Automatic Updates – Never miss out on the latest features with automatically applied system updates. Rest assured you're always on the newest version of the system and equipped with all possible tools to tackle your toughest problems.

Our Value Proposition

Aptean Food & Beverage ERP is built on decades of food and beverage industry experience and expertise. We know the most common pain points of businesses like yours and have designed our solution to alleviate these concerns with a robust, accessible and scalable solution.

Our system is built on the Microsoft Dynamics platform, meaning your workers will be familiar with the interface and confident in their interactions with it. Our business has partnered with Microsoft for a number of years, so we're confident that as their systems evolve and improve, so do our solutions, future-proofing your operations for what may come.

By implementing Aptean Food & Beverage ERP, you stand to improve your traceability, automation, compliance, reporting and real-time data capture efforts in one fell swoop. You'll also have a far greater degree of control over your supply chain, partner relationships and financial figures.

What's more, the business intelligence functionalities of the system—including anomaly detection, predictions powered by machine learning and advanced simulation capabilities—will also serve to keep you on pace with your key performance indicators (KPIs). The platform can analyze far more data than an individual person and distills all the spreadsheets and tables down to actionable insights quickly so that you can act with the speed necessary to take advantage of opportunities as they arise.
