

The Latest in Logistics: Food and Beverage Transportation Industry Statistics

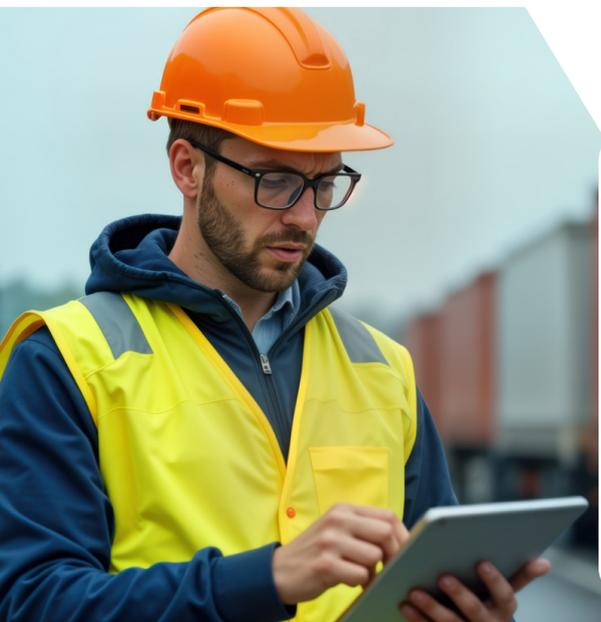

Our recent research revealed several key insights for businesses that transport food and beverage products. Fill up your tank with these fascinating finds.

93%

of food and beverage businesses consider supply chain disruption a concern

Improving supply chain resilience is the top long-term focus area for food and beverage companies of food and beverage organizations use a transportation management system (TMS), and another 40% are planning to implement one in the next 12-24 months

55%

Operations that use technology to optimize routing and scheduling processes increase annual revenue by an average of 2.6% more compared to those that don't

52%

of food and beverage companies believe managing transportation costs is an area for improvement

By mostly or completely automating transportation processes, food and beverage businesses can unlock an additional 1.2% annual revenue growth

Want to Learn More?

For insights on the fresh produce supply chain from our industry experts, download our new eBook

Download eBook >>

Read Now >>

Discover how you can reduce logistics costs with TMS and route optimization software

Read Now >>

Our transportation industry veterans share strategies for overcoming delivery challenges in this roundtable