

Have Concerns About Compliance in Cosmetics?

In the dynamic cosmetics industry, businesses like yours face complex considerations, especially if you market your products internationally. Compliance is one of the most difficult areas to master, with ever-evolving regulations to follow and significant time investment required to ensure that everything you manufacture adheres to all applicable standards.

To make matters even more challenging, compliance legislation varies from country to country and region to region, so a “one-size-fits-all” approach won’t work. While current Good Manufacturing Practices (cGMP) and the Globally Harmonised System of Classification and Labeling of Chemicals (GHS) are universally accepted, your products will also be subject to regional regulations depending on where you operate and sell your goods:

Clearly, there's a lot to take into account for a cosmetics professional such as yourself. Thankfully, purpose-built technology is on your side—and for a best-in-class, streamlined compliance experience, Aptean PLM Lascom Edition is the solution for you.

Key features of the system that help you tackle the matter of compliance:

Substance control to check your product against applicable regulations, customer/brand constraints and your own internal requirements

Automated document generations for Product Information Filing, eliminating the need for manual methods

Formulation tools to create new multi-level formulas from your existing raw materials and bulks repository

Advanced labeling functions to automatically generate lists of ingredients, traces and impurities based on the INCI list of components used and local requirements.

Our software can bring you much more, such as modules dedicated to product portfolio management, product development project management, traceability of cosmetovigilance events and more.
