

Exenta EDI, an Aptean Fashion
Software Solution

Communicate Securely and Easily with Global Supply Chain Partners

Enhance Your Information Exchange Between Suppliers, Wholesalers and More:

Fashion moves quickly—and your data needs to flow even faster for global supply chains to meet and exceed customer demands. You need to be able to quickly exchange critical business documents and transaction confirmations with vendors and customers. EDI in supply chain management will keep you connected to your Global Supply Chain Partners effectively and accurately.

Find your electronic communications solution with Exenta's EDI (electronic data interchange) software. Exenta's electronic data interchange solution enhances information exchange between apparel brands and their suppliers, wholesalers, retailers, third-party manufacturers (3PM) and third-party logistics providers (3PL). EDI allows you to communicate securely and easily from system to system electronically instead of using paper, keeping every aspect of the global supply chain operations visible.

With EDI, apparel and home goods brands benefit from a fast pipeline of timely, mission-critical information about production, inventory, warehouse logistics and retail, while reducing error-prone data entry. In addition to enhancing visibility while reducing costs, brands that leverage EDI in supply chain management position themselves to do business with the world's largest retailers and e-commerce platforms, many of whom require EDI as their standard for information exchange.

Key Features

- › Improve order accuracy
- › Reduce order processing times
- › Increase global supply chain visibility
- › Greater operational efficiency
- › Faster communication with vendors and customers

Electronic Data Interchange, Simplified

Exenta's EDI supply chain solution empowers the flow of critical information throughout global supply chains, giving you unsurpassed visibility into the status of your production operations, inventory, logistics, and order processing. You and your international partners benefit from a seamless exchange of all of the transactional information needed to keep production and order fulfillment moving swiftly. EDI in supply chain management can streamline and expedite your communication with global affiliates.

Exenta's electronic data interchange software provides the information you need to ensure retail compliance and to deliver better, more informed customer service that strengthens long-term business relationships. In addition to Exenta's electronic data interchange solution, Exenta ERP provides consistent data handling across multiple channels, including pre-built integration into the most successful e-commerce channels such as Shopify, Magento and Amazon.
