Orlagh Lynch

Chief Information Security Officer

Vision

In today's everchanging industry, internet, political and regulatory environment, we must prepare not just by strengthening our defenses across all technologies, but by putting in place the processes and culture which allow us to respond quickly and effectively to future threats and changes.

As Workhuman continues to innovate, it is essential that we maintain and advance our security posture. As CISO, my role is not just to put the controls and processes in place to advance our own security, but to lead the team that delivers on our commitment to data security for our customers. Great practices need to be sustainable, so my team is continuously working to maintain our resilience and responsiveness at scale, as we support our mission to make work more human for millions of people across the globe.

Expertise

- Certified Information Security Professional (CISSP)

- Broad range of experience across technology, banking, internet start-up and airport authority

- ISO27001 certification

- Awarded Security Leader of the Year 2018 Women in Tech Awards

LinkedIn profile

Orlagh Lynch

Speaking topics

- Security as a differentiator

- Women Leaders in Technology

Orlagh Lynch

Biography

As Chief Information Security Officer, Orlagh leads efforts in developing and maturing Workhuman's information security programs globally. Since joining Workhuman in 2016, Orlagh's has been an incredible company evangelist for best practice in Information Security and Compliance from the outset. She's been instrumental in developing and helping to elevate Workhuman's information security practice and has led the company's efforts to achieve ISO27001 certification status. Prior to Workhuman, Orlagh was Information Security, Risk & Compliance Manager at daa (Ireland's airport authority) where she led their Information Security and Data Protection functions and has also championed IT security in the banking industry.

"

Recognition provides the opportunity for every single person within an organization to feel seen, heard, and appreciated – no matter how high or low profile a role is. From IT to sales to the executive team, everyone deserves to be recognized.