

JILLIAN HILL, JD , MS , CCC - SLP

SENIOR CLINICIAN

Jill Hill is Senior Clinician at Center for BrainHealth®, where her experience as a former practicing attorney helps her translate science-backed strategies into actionable solutions for specialized populations, such as law students and corporate executives.

Jill's work centers around helping others achieve better brain performance through personalized assessments, SMART™ Brain Training workshops, speaking engagements, and cognitive coaching.

Jill currently focuses on helping corporate groups improve overall employee performance and satisfaction through the BrainHealthy Workplace™ program and by coaching participants in The BrainHealth® Project, a landmark scientific study designed to define, measure and improve brain health and performance across the lifespan.

Experienced in delivering cognitive assessments and training to a wide range of populations, Jill has worked with graduate-level students, large corporations, active-duty military and veterans, law enforcement, and individuals with early-stage dementia.

Jill has the good fortune of being able to blend her experience as an attorney with her knowledge and passion for cognitive health. She enjoys finding the purpose that motivates others to push themselves to the next level in brain performance.
