PREFACE

We are pleased to present the 2026 Guide to Proactive Steps (GPS) for Alzheimer’s and other dementias. This guide supports individuals, families, caregivers, and healthcare professionals with a practical, easy-to-use tool to help families navigate what can often feel like an overwhelming journey. The GPS now includes expanded resources for individuals living with Young Age Onset dementia, alongside guidance relevant to people of all ages affected by dementia. Our goal is to transform complex information into clear, actionable steps that help families move forward with confidence.

This year's GPS introduces two core tools: Checklists and Action Lists. The Checklists highlights key areas to address – such as obtaining a diagnosis, planning for care, and connecting to support – while the Action Lists complements this by providing practical guidance and context to help families understand what to do, why it matters, and how to take steps.

Whether you are newly navigating a new diagnosis, living with Young Age Onset dementia, supporting a loved one, or planning ahead, the GPS is designed to meet you where you are with timely, compassionate guidance.

Look for the “NEW” label to identify expanded or newly added content. These updates reflect information new to this version.

Most printed copies of the GPS will be distributed through healthcare providers. Providers – and families – are encouraged to print and share the flyer on the inside back cover to help connect others to trusted resources.

For the most current information and live links to helpful websites, visit the online version of the GPS, which offers easy navigation and ongoing updates.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Guide to Proactive Steps (GPS) is the result of a deeply collaborative effort, and it simply wouldn't exist without the dedication, insight, and generosity of so many individuals and organizations.

A special thanks goes out to Karen Jennings (Alzheimer's Association at Baylor Memory Center) as well as Tina Lott (Caring with Grace) for their contributions to this initiative. These individuals volunteered their time to provide insights that shaped this Guide to become a resource that truly addresses both the professional standards regarding dementia care and the very practical issues faced by families.

A huge thank you to an array of other professionals who offered their expertise to the creation of information in this document as well as all the organizations and programs featured in the GPS for the valuable services offered to families living with a diagnosis of dementia. With your participation, the GPS provides a more comprehensive list of options for families and information on how to access the services.

We are also greatly appreciative of the generous support we receive from AWARE, whose investment has made the development of this GPS a possibility. Since 1989, AWARE has promoted resources, education, and programs for North Texas families and caregivers impacted by Alzheimer's disease. This GPS' goal of assisting families in navigating the dementia journey with care and confidence is directly aligned with AWARE's mission to offer clear guidance and support.

Together, the GPS has transformed far beyond a booklet, but into a true community resource formed through collaboration, care, and a shared vision to assist families in moving forward with confidence.

Dear Reader,

No one wants a diagnosis of Alzheimer's or other dementia. At the Center for BrainHealth®, we understand the stark reality of this diagnosis, but we also recognize the potential that still exists and can be nurtured in the years ahead. We believe individuals and families are empowered when they learn what they can do, and this guide is designed to help illuminate that path.

This edition of the Guide to Proactive Steps introduces two new tools – Checklists and Action Lists – to help you get started. The Checklist offers a high-level overview of key areas to address, while the Action Lists provides a deeper context and practical advice for each step. Together, they are designed to help you take meaningful action now, while also preparing for what may lie ahead.

We also invite healthcare professionals – including doctors, neurologists, and care teams – to share this guide with their patients. On the inside back cover, you'll find a flyer that can be copied or downloaded online, making it easy to connect families to the digital version of this guide. Your recommendation can be the bridge that connects a family to hope, clarity, and support.

And to families: if you find this guide helpful, please consider sharing it with your doctors and care providers. By spreading awareness of these resources, you help others access the support they need earlier in their journey.

Together, we can shift the narrative from fear to proactive engagement – and from isolation to community.

Warmly,

Audette Rackley, M.S., CCC/SLP

ALZHEIMER'S DISCOVERY PROGRAM

What is the Alzheimer's Discovery Program?

- The Alzheimer's Discovery Program includes resources developed at Center for BrainHealth to support families living with a diagnosis of Alzheimer's or other dementia.
- Go to Alzheimer's Discovery or see below for a summary of options.

Ask the Experts about Alzheimer's ^{AWARE}

- Explore Commonly Asked Questions: Gain wisdom on commonly asked questions about Alzheimer's or other forms of dementia from families living with a diagnosis.
- Personal Stories of Alzheimer's: Explore personal narratives from families living with a diagnosis of Alzheimer's or other dementia. Stories share insights into their journey and how they navigated towards a positive path despite a diagnosis.

Reason to Explore Alzheimer's Discovery Online Resources ^{AWARE}

- Overcome isolation and overwhelm: Hear from families with similar diagnoses to help you realize you are not alone in your journey.
- Gain wisdom and insight: Access valuable perspectives and advice from those who have walked similar paths.
- Receive expert guidance: Learn from dementia experts as well as families on a similar path on ways to navigate your journey with dementia.

Online Access to Guide to Proactive Steps (GPS) ^{AWARE}

- Link to an online version of the GPS with an option to print individual pages at Guide to Proactive Steps then click "Access the GPS".

CONCIERGE BRAINHEALTH® INDEX

What is it?

- The Concierge BrainHealth® Index is a non-diagnostic assessment of brain performance that identifies areas of strength and offers specific, easy to implement recommendations in areas for improvement based on the latest cognitive neuroscience.
- The Concierge BrainHealth® Index is conducted one-on-one with an experienced clinician who is able to adapt the assessment to suit a variety of specific concerns.

Who might benefit?

- Caregivers and healthy aging adults of all ages who want to be proactive in finding ways to maintain and even improve their brain performance through regular monitoring.

Why do it?

- A Concierge BrainHealth® Index establishes a baseline of function and provides an opportunity to speak with a clinician and get personalized, practical action items to strengthen brain function.

How do I schedule a Concierge BrainHealth Index?

- A Concierge BrainHealth® Index can be scheduled either for a morning or an afternoon appointment. Feedback sessions with personal recommendations typically occur two to three weeks later.
- Assessments are administered at the Brain Performance Institute, 2200 W. Mockingbird Lane, Dallas, TX 75235. Parking is free and easily accessible, and our building is ADA-compliant.
- For more information, visit Brain Health Index for more information.
- For pricing information and scheduling, contact the Concierge BrainHealth Index team at (972) 883-3300.

iREST

Mindfulness is a science-based practice of managing stress by learning how to cultivate a sense of calm. Thanks to a special partnership with Warrior Spirit Project, the Brain Performance Institute is proud to offer weekly integrative restoration (iRest) classes focusing on this practice.

Who might benefit?

- Care partners who want to incorporate moments of calm into daily life.
- People who want to deal with the reality of changes in a positive manner.
- Diagnosed individuals who want to be proactive in moments of stress, fear, or frustration.

Why do it?

- A diagnosis of Alzheimer's can increase stress for the diagnosed person and for care partners.
- Knowing how to create (or regain) a sense of calm is an important habit to establish.
- It is important to be prepared for how to manage upcoming increases in stress.
- A calm perspective can decrease stress and improve the ability to visualize alternatives.

How do I participate in iRest at the Center for BrainHealth®?

- iRest is a guided, restorative, evidence-based relaxation practice.
- Guided classes are held on Wednesdays from 1:00 p.m. to 2:00 p.m.
- Cost is $15 per session.
- Located at the Brain Performance Institute, 2200 W. Mockingbird Ln., Dallas, TX 75235
 - To register, visit www.centerforbrainhealth.org and search "iRest"

For more on stress management and mindfulness, see page 94.

CHANGES IN MEMORY AND THINKING? ^{NEW}

If you're noticing changes in memory and thinking and wondering about next steps, this checklist can help guide you through the process of getting answers. Understanding the process—and knowing what to expect—can help you advocate for yourself or someone you care about.

1. Schedule an Appointment with your Primary Care Provider

Your doctor's first response will be to consider a treatable cause for change such as:

- Stress or burnout
- Sleep problems (like sleep apnea)
- Depression or anxiety
- Hormonal changes (e.g., perimenopause, thyroid issues)
- Medication side effects or drug interactions
- Vitamin deficiencies (like B12 or folate)

2. Keep a Log of the Changes

Prior to your appointment, make a list of changes you are noticing and be as specific as possible. Things to record include:

- Changes in your health including memory, behaviors, and mood.
- When changes began.
- How often you notice the changes (occasionally, periodically, frequently persistently)
- Whether changes occur at certain times of day.
- How impactful the change is on life (annoying, frustrating, concerning) (noticeable to self, spouse or others).

Help your doctor quickly focus on key concerns by summarizing your observations in 3–5 bullet points that include:

- Main symptom/problem/change.
- Duration (how long symptoms have occurred).
- Specific behaviors.

Example:

- For 3 months: unable to keep track of calendar, missing appointments.
- Unable to manage personal finances; susceptible to scams.
- Significant appetite changes: lost 12 pounds, now craving sweets, gained 12 pounds.

3. Preparing for your appointment.

- Bring your notes outlining changes you have noticed in your health, including mood, memory and behavior.
- Medical History - Make a list of past and current medical problems (e.g. surgeries, diagnoses, head injuries, etc.) and let your doctor know if other family members had illnesses that caused memory problems.
- Review medications – Bring a list of current prescriptions and over-the-counter medications (including vitamins or supplements) as some drugs can impact cognition.

CHANGES IN MEMORY AND THINKING? (continued)

- Write down questions as they come to mind before your doctor's visit, so you're prepared when the time comes.
- Bring your spouse, family member or friend with you to take notes.
- Be prepared to answer the doctor's questions honestly and to the best of your ability.

4. If symptoms persist or worsen, you have the right to advocate for answers.

Ask your doctor how familiar he or she is with diagnosing cognitive concerns and whether there are circumstances in which he or she would refer to a specialist. You can ask your doctor to:

- Order a brain MRI (to check for structural changes or abnormalities).
- Refer for neuropsychological testing (to measure thinking, memory, and other cognitive functions). Establishing a baseline helps guide future care, especially if symptoms progress. The earlier you start, the more options you may have for support, treatment and planning.
- Check bloodwork – to rule out vitamin deficiencies, thyroid problems, or other metabolic issues.
- Refer you to a specialist. Some people with unclear symptoms may require evaluation by two or more specialists who combine their findings to reach a diagnosis. These specialists may include:
 - Neurologist, who specializes in diseases of the brain and nervous system.
 - Neuropsychologist, a specialist trained to perform detailed testing of thinking abilities such as memory, language, attention, reasoning, and problem-solving.
 - Neuropsychiatrist, a psychiatrist with additional training in how brain changes (injury, stroke, dementia, etc.) affect mood, thinking, and behavior.
 - Geriatric psychiatrist, a psychiatrist with specialized training in mental health issues in older adults, including depression, anxiety, and dementia.
 - Geriatrician, who specializes in the care of older adults and dementia.

Blood tests and scans (MRI or CT) can help rule out other conditions. Getting them early can speed up the process if you go on to see a specialist.

Trust Your Instincts: You know yourself—and if something feels off, you deserve to be heard. Be persistent. Keep asking questions. Keep tracking changes. And don't stop until you get the answers and support you need.

MEDICAL CHECKLIST FOR ONGOING CARE ^{NEW}

Whether you continue working with your primary care provider (PCP) or are referred to a specialist, staying organized can make a big difference. Use these tips to stay prepared throughout the process.

1. Prior to your Appointment

- Create a binder to help you organize medical information.
- Request copies of previous testing – Request copies of previous test results ordered by your PCP to be sent to the specialist prior to your appointment. Tests could include recent blood work, MRI, and any cognitive testing. Also be sure to bring a complete list of medications and supplements.
- Medical History and Current Medications – Create a document with the following information:
 - Medical and Surgical History: Include any significant medical conditions and past surgeries, such as pacemakers, metal implants, joint replacements, dental bridges or shunts, as these can affect MRI eligibility.
 - Medication List: Provide a complete list of current medications and supplements.
 - Imaging History: Note any previous MRI or CT scans of the head. Include the date, purpose, and location of each scan, if available.
- Summarize concerns concisely – Prepare for your visit by writing down specific examples of changes in memory, behavior, or daily function. (If you are concerned about dementia and need help identifying symptoms or organizing your list, visit: www.alz.org/alzheimers-dementia/10_signs.)
- Recruit a support person – Invite a family member to attend the appointment with you to help with remembering details, asking questions and taking notes.
- Be patient. It may take time to get an appointment with a specialist. Use your time to make notes of what you observe and clarify your concerns. Remember that any testing already completed will help move the process along.

2. Expectations for the Appointment.

- If no previous testing has been completed, expect referrals for:
 - Complete cognitive testing – (memory and thinking assessments).
 - Lab tests and brain imaging – Blood tests and scans (MRI or CT) can help rule out other conditions.
- Build a Collaborative Relationship – Bring a notebook for questions and notes. Request access to your patient portal.
- Confirm understanding of next steps – Before leaving, summarize key takeaways, clarify any confusion, and confirm time for the next appointment.

MEDICAL CHECKLIST FOR ONGOING CARE (continued)

3. Understanding and Processing the Diagnosis

- Request a clear explanation – Ask the doctor to explain the diagnosis, including type (e.g., Alzheimer’s, vascular dementia).
- Discuss treatment options – Learn about medications, lifestyle changes, and therapies that can help.
- Ask about prognosis and follow-ups – Understand what to expect and how often to check in.
- Take notes during the appointment – Record pertinent information from the meeting in your notebook for easy reference later.
- Sign a release of information – this is a good time to ask the person with dementia to sign a release of information so a family member can freely communicate with the doctor on the person’s behalf. Be sure every person listed as a medical power of attorney are listed on a HIPAA release with your provider.

GUIDE Program (CMS)

Nationwide program that provides coordinated dementia care and limited caregiving support services (approximately 80 hours annually).

- Available only to those with traditional Medicare (not Medicare Advantage).
- For more information, visit www.cms.gov and search “Guiding an Improved Dementia Experience (GUIDE) Model.”

GET YOUR AFFAIRS IN ORDER: WHAT DOES THAT MEAN? ^{NEW}

Estate Planning Checklist

A diagnosis of dementia can feel overwhelming—for both the person receiving it and their loved ones. When doctors advise someone to “get their affairs in order,” it means to take care of personal and financial matter such as legal documents, assets, and end-of-life planning.

1. Advance Directives

- Name a Healthcare Agent/Medical Power of Attorney (MPOA) to make medical decisions in case you're incapacitated.
- Ensure that everyone named as a primary or alternate agent in your Medical Power of Attorney (MPOA) is also authorized on your HIPAA release form with your healthcare provider.
- Outline your medical wishes in a Living Will/Directive to Physicians.
- Talk with your loved ones about your wishes.
- Ensure your MPOA and DPOA (Durable Power of Attorney) coordinate decisions; if needed, care managers are available to help resolve disagreements (see page 21).
- Go to nia.nih.gov to learn more.

2. Financial POA

- Name an Agent to make legal or financial decisions in case you're unavailable or incapacitated.
- Ensure your Financial Advisor and your Agent communicate with one another.

3. Last Will & Testament

- Name an Executor and Contingent Executors to probate your will.
- Create an inventory of your personal property, and document who should receive specific items.
- Document how you want your assets distributed.

4. Revocable or Irrevocable Living Trust

- Decide whether a Revocable or Irrevocable Trust best suits your needs—consult an estate planning attorney for guidance.
- Name a Trustee and Contingent Trustees to manage your trust.
- Work with your Financial Advisor to ensure your property and assets are transferred into the Trust.

5. Beneficiary Designations

- Ensure your Beneficiary Designations such as 401 (k), IRA accounts, life insurance policies are current.

GET YOUR AFFAIRS IN ORDER: WHAT DOES THAT MEAN? (continued)

6. Identifying Documents

- Gather important documents such as your birth certificate, social security card, marriage certificate, divorce decree, military records.
- To view a list of general documents to organize, visit nia.hih.gov and search “Documents to prepare for the future”.

7. Insurance & Accounts

- Organize your medical, dental, prescription, life, homeowners, renters, and car insurance policies.
- Make a list of your financial accounts & advisors including account numbers, passwords, etc.
- Meet with your bank to review account setup, add fraud protections, and ensure your wishes are honored after you pass.
- Use the Legal and Financial Worksheet to organize everything in one place.
Legal and Financial Worksheet

8. Titles & Deeds

- Review the titles or deeds for your vehicles, home, boat, and property.
- If you have a Living Trust, make sure all the property has been retitled to the trust.

9. Funeral & Burial Plans

- Share any pre-arrangements with the person you named as Executor of your Estate.
- Share your preferences for your funeral service with your faith leaders and loved ones.

10. Digital Assets

- Consider using a Password Manager to keep track of your accounts—but be sure to share the master password with your Executor.
- Don’t forget email, social media, apps, & more.

What comes next? Now that your legal and financial plans are set, store them securely and share access with your Executor, Trustee, Agents, or trusted loved ones. Your Executor must submit the signed original Will to Probate Court, so keep it easy to find. Review everything regularly to keep it current.

PLANNING FOR THE UNEXPECTED ^{NEW}

Emergencies don't wait for us to be ready – but a little planning can make a big difference. These are general recommendations not yet covered in this document. They are intended to help make your life easier in the moment. Remember: being prepared is not about expecting the worst, it is about feeling confident you can handle life's surprises when they happen.

1. Prepare Now for Life's "What-ifs"

Unexpected challenges like a sudden illness, a family emergency, a last-minute trip, or even something as simple as car trouble. Taking some time now to prepare for the 'what' if's" can reduce stress, ensure your loved one is supported, and give you peace of mind. Here are some key steps to help you feel more prepared:

- Designate a Backup Care Partner to step in temporarily if you're unavailable – even on short notice.
 - Talk with them in advance about routines, medications, and preferences
 - Make sure they know the location of the emergency binder. View the information periodically to be sure information is up to date.
 - Make sure they know how to access the home or facility and have keys or codes if needed.
- Create a List of Important Contacts
 - Primary doctor and specialists
 - Pharmacy
 - Emergency contacts/Back-up care partners
 - Insurance providers
 - Local hospital or urgent care
- Prepare a "Go Folder" or Emergency Binder with essential information that's easy to grab or share in an emergency. Keep one at home and a digital version (securely stored or shared). Include:
 - Medical and current medications (for both the person with dementia and the caregiver).
 - Include surgical history such as pacemakers, metal implants, joint replacements, bridges, or shunts, which may impact MRI decisions.
 - List any prior MRIs or CT scans, including the date, reason for the scan, and the facility where it was performed.
 - Health insurance cards.
 - Legal documents (healthcare proxy, power of attorney, DNR orders, etc.)
 - A brief daily routine, including exercise, diet and sleep.
 - Allergies or special needs.
 - Create a Hospital Go-Kit with personal items, entertainment, comfort items, and needed charging cords.

PLANNING FOR THE UNEXPECTED (continued)

- Make sure the person with the diagnosis has an advocate.
 - The person with the diagnosis should always have an advocate in the event they go to the hospital or other unfamiliar setting.
- Talk about the Plan Before It's Needed. It's not always easy to think about emergencies, but open conversations now can reduce confusion later.
 - Involve your loved one in the planning as much as possible.
 - Let family members and friends know what roles they might play.
 - Update your plan as situations change (every 6-12 months is a good rule of thumb).

2. What if you don't have extended family or close support nearby?

Not everyone has close family or friends nearby to help in an emergency, and that's okay. You can still create a reliable plan by identifying local professionals who can step in to support your care needs. Consider connecting with an Aging Life Care Manager (also known as a geriatric care manager) to help with:

- Coordinating care and helping create or update a care plan
- Attending appointments or serving as a healthcare advocate
- Locating trusted home care or community support services
- Providing companionship or check-ins when you're unavailable
- Supporting transitions in housing or living arrangements

To find one near you:

- Visit www.aginglifecare.org and select “Find an Aging Life Care Expert”
- When contacting a provider, ask if they have experience working with individuals living with dementia and whether they are affiliated with the Aging Life Care Association, which upholds professional standards and ethical guidelines.

3. Update End-of-Life Preferences:

- Having a conversation around end-of-life preferences is an important conversation for everyone. If you need help starting the conversation, check out theconversationproject.org or The Conversation Project Starter Guides

4. Create the Plan You Need.

Think of planning as a form of self-care. You don't have to do it all at once—just take it one step at a time. The habit of asking “What can I do next?” is a powerful tool.

- What action plan do you need to create? Take a moment to reflect.
 - What's been keeping you up at night?
 - What's one decision you've been putting off?
 - What kind of support would help you move forward?

If you need help, talk it over with a trusted friend or professional. You don't have to do this alone—and you don't have to do it perfectly.

PRACTICAL IDEAS TO PROTECT YOURSELF FROM SCAMS & FRAUDS ^{NEW}

Financial scams are becoming more sophisticated. Anyone can be targeted – especially older adults or those experiencing memory changes. Following are a few ideas to consider to protect yourself.

1. Share Financial Tasks Early: Start building a trusted team now.
 - Choose someone you trust to help manage bills and accounts – a spouse, adult child, or legal representative.
 - Discuss how you'd like decisions made and gradually share access or responsibilities.
 - Consider legal tools like Power of Attorney or Trustee to support long-term planning.
 - Keep communication open and transparent with other family members.

2. Add Financial Safeguards: Small actions today can prevent big problems tomorrow.
 - Work with Your Bank or Financial Institution
 - Set up account alerts from your bank for large withdrawals or unusual spending and ask about spending limits, and fraud detection tools.
 - Designate a trusted contact to be notified of suspicious activity.
 - Choose a bank with age-friendly services and trained staff.
 - If online banking is confusing, opt for in-person services when possible.
 - Consolidate accounts to reduce complexity and simplify monitoring.
 - Check for caregiver-friendly tools, such as viewing access or dual authorization options.
 - Ask your bank if they offer the option to enroll in a credit monitoring system. If not, consider enrolling in a program such as Life Lock.
 - Set Up Systems to Simplify and Monitor Spending
 - Create separate accounts:
 - One for essential bills (monitored by a trusted person).
 - One for everyday spending (limited balance and debit card access).
 - Set up automatic bill payments to avoid missed due dates.
 - Use alerts for large withdrawals, wire transfers, or unusual activity. Ask if your bank will suspend (or create safeguards with respect to) wire transfers if that is an option.
 - Review accounts frequently with a trusted support person.
 - Reduce Risk of Financial Exploitation
 - Freeze your credit with the three major credit bureaus (Equifax, Experian, TransUnion) to prevent new accounts from being opened.
 - Limit access to cash, credit cards, and checkbooks to reduce risk of impulse purchases or fraud.
 - Remove important documents (e.g. social security card or multiple credit cards) from your wallet or purse to reduce worry and work in the event the wallet or purse is misplaced.

PROTECT YOURSELF FROM SCAMS & FRAUDS (continued)

- Consider a Prepaid Card with Safeguards:
 - A helpful tool to promote safe, monitored spending is the True Link Prepaid Visa Card. This card allows:
 - Spending limits and custom restrictions (e.g., block certain purchases or vendors).
 - Real-time transaction monitoring by caregivers or trusted contacts.
 - Independence for the cardholder with appropriate safeguards in place.

3. Reduce Scam Contact: Make it harder for scammers to reach you.

- Protect Against Phone Scams
 - Use a landline or simplified mobile phone with only key contacts saved.
 - Activate your phone's spam filter. Most smartphones have built-in tools to block suspected scam calls – check your settings and turn them on.
 - Set up Assistive Access on iPhone: Apple Support has detailed guidance for seniors or those who need simplified access at Assistive Access User Guide for iPhone
 - To silence unknown callers on an iPhone, follow these instructions: Manage Unknown Callers on iPhone
 - Contact your phone service provider to inquire about available scam-blocking tools and to request assistance in enabling those protections on your device.
 - Sign up for call-blocking or spam-filtering services from your phone provider (e.g. Nomorobo, AT&T Call Protect, or Verizon Call Filter).
 - Consider a simplified phone with safety features.
 - The RAZ Memory Cell Phone allows only pre-approved contacts to appear on the screen—ideal for individuals with memory loss. Learn more at RAZ Mobility | Next Generation Assistive Technology
 - TeleCalm is a phone service that may help protect loved ones from scam calls. Learn more at TeleCalm
 - Minimize Junk Mail and Unwanted Marketing
 - Opt out of junk mail and telemarketing lists. Learn more at www.DMAchoice.org and www.DoNotCall.gov
 - Consider a locking mailbox or sending sensitive mail from the post office to avoid mail theft.
- Monitor Incoming Mail and Communications
 - Sign up with the U.S. Postal Service's Informed Delivery. This free service sends an email with scanned images of incoming mail, helpful for spotting important

- Monitor Incoming Mail and Communications (continued)
 - documents like property tax notices, bills, and other time-sensitive correspondence before it arrives.
 - Review suspicious-looking mail – especially sweepstakes, bills, donations requests, or anything marked ‘urgent.’
 - Keep a “junk mail” folder so you can review it with a trusted person before taking action.
 - Be cautious of emails or letters requesting personal or financial information – even if they appear to come from a known company.
- 4. Create a Financial Emergency Plan: Planning ahead can reduce stress and protect your future.
 - Make a list of your accounts, bills and passwords and store it in a secure but accessible place. Let a trusted person know how to access it if needed.
 - Make copies of the front and back of every card (debit, credit, insurance, ID) in case they are lost or stolen.
 - Name a Power of Attorney for financial matters – this legal document allows someone to step in if you become unable to manage finances yourself.
 - Set up contingency plans: What should happen if you are hospitalized or unable to manage bills for a short time? Who should step in, and what do they need to know? (See page 15)
 - Review beneficiaries on bank accounts, retirement plans, and insurance policies to be sure they reflect your current wishes.
 - Consider impact of diagnosis in the event you need to update your Power of Attorney. Be sure to check with your attorney for next steps as this decision impacts both the person with the diagnosis and their care partner.
 - Discuss what “red flags” might look like, so a trusted person knows when to intervene or check-in.
- 5. Use Technology to Stay in Control: Smart tools can make managing money safer and easier.
 - Prepaid or limited-access debit cards (like True Link) offer control over where and how money is spent, with real-time monitoring options.
 - Bill Pay apps and reminders can help you stay on track with due dates. Some banks offer automatic alerts or calendar integrations.
 - Password managers help keep login information safe and accessible, reducing the need to write passwords down.
 - Account monitoring tools (like EverSafe) can detect unusual activity and alert trusted contacts.
 - Voice assistants and smart speakers can help with reminders for bills, appointments, or check-ins if used carefully and securely.

6. Monitor In-Home Help. Most paid caregivers are trustworthy – but it’s smart to stay aware.
 - Lock up valuables like jewelry, credit cards, financial documents, and cash.
 - Keep a visitor log or install discreet cameras in shared areas. If you employ a home care agency, you can say you have cameras even if you don’t. The agency will add “cameras” to the client profile so all the caregivers will be alerted. This information can be a deterrent.
 - Watch for red flags like missing items or sudden changes to legal documents; inheritance hijacking.

7. Important Contacts and Resources: If you or someone you know experiences a scam or financial fraud, these resources can help you act quickly and effectively.
 - Contact your banks, credit card companies and investment firms right away to report that your personal information has been compromised.
 - If a Social Security number was given out, report it to the Federal Trade Commission at <https://reportfraud.ftc.gov/assistant>
 - If the victim is aged 60 or older, the National Elder Fraud Hotline offers support at 1-833-FRAUD-11 (1-833-372-8311). Staffed by professionals from the U.S. Department of Justice, the hotline provides personalized assistance and next steps.

UNDERSTANDING CARE OPTIONS FOR ALZHEIMER'S ^{NEW}

*This guide explains the main support services available to help you and your loved one. It tells you what they do, when to use them, and how they're paid for.

- 1. Care Management: A care manager is a trusted aging expert who helps plan, coordinate, and oversee care. They act as a guide, problem-solver, and advocate to ensure important details are not overlooked, reducing caregiver stress and improving outcomes.

When to use a Care Manager:

- Care feels complicated or overwhelming.
- You need help finding the right services or housing.
- There is a hospital stay, sudden health change, or crisis.

What a Care Manager Does:

- Create and regularly update a personalized care plan.
- Care coordination such as medical appointments and support services.
- Housing guidance through assisting in choosing the most appropriate living arrangement.
- Provide on-site crisis support during emergencies.
- Facilitate family discussions and decision-making.
- Conduct home safety evaluations, suggesting changes for safety and cognitive memory queeuing.
- Problem-solving around financial resources, location, and health needs.
- Provide ongoing support as needs change.

Payment:

- Typically, private pay.
- Some long-term care insurance policies may cover part of the cost.
- Many require signed contracts and HIPPA forms before starting services.

How to Access:

- <https://www.aginglifecare.org/>
- Carelike - Provider Search then search "Community Services" then "Geriatric Care Managers". Enter your zip code for a list of options near you.

- 2. Home Care: Home care helps with everyday tasks to support your loved one at home, focusing on daily living assistance rather than medical care. Caregivers provide hands-on support and may be trained as certified nurse aides (CNAs) to help ensure safety and comfort.

When to use Home Care:

- Your loved one needs help with bathing, dressing, or eating.
- You want them to stay at home longer.
- Your loved one would benefit from companionship and supervision.

UNDERSTANDING CARE OPTIONS FOR ALZHEIMER’S (continued)

Home Care (continued)

What they do:

- Assist with bathing, dressing, and meals.
- Helps with light cleaning, laundry, and shopping.
- Provide transportation to appointments.
- Offer companionship and supervision.

Payment:

- Usually, private pay or covered by long-term care insurance.
- Some Medicaid or Medicare Advantage programs may cover part of the cost.

How to Access:

- Find home care (and more) in your area at www.communityresourcefinder.org, click on “Care at Home”, choose “Home Care”, enter your zip code, and select “SEARCH”

- 3. Companion Care: Companion care, also known as non-direct care or non-medical home care, focuses on providing companionship, emotional support, and assistance with daily activities to help individuals, primarily seniors and those with disabilities, maintain their independence and quality of life at home. Unlike personal care or skilled nursing, companion care does not involve hands-on assistance with activities of daily living (ADLs) such as bathing or dressing, or complex medical procedures.

When to use Companion Care:

- An individual is experiencing loneliness or isolation.
- Help is needed with light household tasks, errands, or meal preparation.
- Transportation is needed for appointments, shopping, or social activities.
- The individual would benefit from emotional support and regular social interaction.
- Safety supervision is needed, but hands-on personal or medical care is not required.

What Companion Care Does:

- Provide friendly companionship, engaging conversations, and participation in hobbies or activities.
- Assist with light housekeeping, laundry, and meal preparation to maintain a safe, comfortable home.
- Offer transportation for errands, appointments, and community or social events.
- Provide emotional support, encouragement, and help coping with challenges such as grief or loneliness.
- Monitor for potential safety hazards and provide supervision in case of emergencies.

Companion Care (continued)

Payment:

- Typically, private pay.
- Some long-term care insurance policies may cover part of the cost.
- Many agencies require service agreements and HIPAA forms before starting care.

How to Access:

- If you need help connecting with companion care, check out www.NaborForce.com and www.SeniorsHelpingSeniors.com

4. Home Health Care: Home health care provides medical services in the comfort of your home, prescribed and overseen by a doctor. It's designed for those who need skilled care but prefer not to move to a facility.

When to use:

- Following a hospital stay or a change in health, when a doctor determines the client would benefit from rehabilitation.
- For ongoing medical care that can be managed at home.

What they do:

- Provide nursing care, including medications and wound care.
- Offer physical, speech, or occupational therapy.
- Medical social work.
- Home health aide support for personal care.

Payment:

- Often covered by Medicare, Medicaid, or private insurance (with a doctor's order).

How to Access:

- Your doctor or hospital will prescribe this in-home service for you.
- You can also refer to www.medicare.gov/care-compare/ for more information.

5. Palliative Care: Palliative care focuses on comfort and quality of life for people with serious illnesses. It can be provided at any stage of illness, even while receiving active treatment.

When to Palliative Care:

- Your loved one has ongoing symptoms such as pain, nausea, or shortness of breath.
- You want extra support to improve overall quality of life.

What they do:

- Manage symptoms to reduce discomfort.
- Provide emotional and practical support for patients and families.

Palliative Care (continued)

Payment:

- Often covered by insurance or available as private pay.

How to Access:

- Your doctor or hospital will prescribe this in-home service for you.

6. Hospice: Hospice care provides comfort and support when a person's life expectancy is six months or less and the focus shifts from curing illness to ensuring quality of life.

When to Use:

- Your loved one's priority is comfort, not further medical treatment.

What They Do:

- Manage pain and other symptoms.
- Provide emotional, spiritual, and practical support for patients and families.

Payment:

- Covered by Medicare, Medicaid, or private insurance.

How to Access:

- Your doctor or hospital will prescribe this in-home service for you.
- You can also refer to www.medicare.gov/care-compare/ for more information.

7. Senior Living Advisors: Senior living advisors provide free guidance to help you find the right care facility, such as assisted living or memory care, based on your loved one's needs and preferences.

When to Use:

- You are considering moving your loved one to a care facility.

What They Do:

- Recommend facilities that match your needs and budget.
- Arrange and coordinate tours.
- Offer advice on local care options and amenities.

Payment:

- Free to you, advisors are paid by the facility if your loved one moves in.

How to Access:

- Find more information or connect with a local advisor through their website <https://npra.memberclicks.net/>
- Additional options can be found via Carelike - Provider Search. Search "Community Services" then "Referral Agencies". Enter your zip code to access vetted senior living advisors.

8. Aging in Place Specialists: Aging in place specialists are professionals who assess and modify homes to make them safer and more accessible for older adults, helping them remain at home as long as possible.

When to Use:

- Your loved one wishes to stay at home rather than move to a care facility.

What They Do:

- Recommend safety improvements such as grab bars, ramps, or better lighting.
- Plan home modifications to make daily living easier and safer.
- Plan for future needs before a crisis
- Collaborate with contractors to get the work done right.

Payment:

- Typically, private pay.
- Some programs or Veterans Affairs (VA) benefits may help with costs.

How to Access:

- The National Association of Home Builders website has information on ideas to make your home more age friendly. Go to www.nahb.org and search 'aging in place'.
- Reach out to area police and fire departments or churches to inquire about other possible options in your city.

9. Daily Money Managers: Daily money managers are professionals who help organize and oversee day-to-day personal finances, ensuring bills are paid on time and important paperwork is handled correctly.

When to Use:

- Managing bills or financial paperwork has become overwhelming.

What They Do:

- Pay bills on time and calls to payees regarding incorrect bills.
- Organize financial records and documents.
- Assist with insurance claims.
- Refer clients to legal or tax professionals when needed.
- Some may serve as Power of Attorney or trustee.

Payment:

- Private pay.

TRAVEL TIPS ^{NEW}

Traveling can be a stressful process. Below are resources and tips to help make the process as smooth as possible. Please do keep in mind that not all airports and airlines operate the same. Call your airport and airline to confirm your plans and find additional resources.

TSA

TSA Cares

Designed to assist travelers who may need additional assistance with screening by offering information on what to expect and how to approach the screening process.

- Phone number: (855) 787-2227. It is strongly recommended to contact TSA at least 72 hours prior to a scheduled departure to ensure timely coordination of your request.
- If you prefer to submit your request for screening assistance via email, go to tsa.gov/contact-center/form/cares. If your flight is within 72 hours, please call the number above for assistance.
- Available 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. ET on weekdays and 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. ET on weekends and holidays
- Note: TSA Cares assistance is only available for assistance through the screening checkpoint. If you need in-flight assistance or wheelchair assistance, please contact your airline.

TSA Passenger Support Specialist (PPS)

Available through TSA Cares. TSA PPS's are TSA officers who have received specialized training including how to effectively assist and communicate with travelers with disabilities and/or medical conditions.

- To request PPS assistance, complete the TSA Cares Assistance form found on their website: tsa.gov/travel/passenger-support.
- PPS does not exempt you from security screening.

TSA Precheck

If you are planning to travel frequently, TSA PreCheck may be a useful purchase to make the security screening process simpler and more efficient.

- Benefits include: separate, expedited security line, not required to remove shoes, electronics, liquids, belts, or jackets.
- Costs is $78 for 5-year membership.
- Learn more at tsa.gov/precheck.

THE HIDDEN DISABILITIES SUNFLOWER INITIATIVE

Hidden Disabilities Sunflower Airports

A growing number of airports are beginning to implement programs to better support travelers with hidden disabilities. As part of this emerging initiative, some airports are training staff to recognize and respond to the needs of individuals wearing a Sunflower Lanyard, which discreetly signals that the wearer has a hidden disability.

- Find complete list of Sunflower airports at hdsunflower.com.
- Lanyards can be obtained using their website or by contacting your airport.

Route Planner

For long drives, the Hidden Disabilities Sunflower website offers a route planner that shows where places that support people with invisible disabilities are located on your route.

- Use the route planner here: hdsunflower.com/us/find-the-sunflower.

GENERAL TIPS TO SUPPORT PEOPLE WITH DEMENTIA

We all know the unexpected can happen from flight delays and gate changes to any number of other inconveniences. The impact of the unexpected affects all of us to some degree. For those with dementia, the impact is magnified. While you likely will not eliminate stress, a little forward planning can help minimize stress and that goes a long way in helping people function. Consider the following:

- People with dementia benefit from traveling with a buddy.
- Consider packing ear plugs or noise cancelling headphones to reduce the stress from noise.
- Get to the airport early enough so you do not feel rushed.
- Consider booking direct flights rather than connecting.
- Simplify the travel process as much as possible such as getting a travel lanyard to hold your ID and boarding pass.
- Wear shoes that are easy on easy off.
- Place electronics and liquids in an easy-to-access location of your carry-on for security.
- Utilize the TSA Travel Checklist located in the templates section of this book.
- Call your airport and airline to inquire about accessibility resources.
- Use electronic boarding passes to avoid the check-in line if not checking luggage.
- Dress comfortably.
- Look up carry-on limits in advance.
- Download an airport map to plan where to go.

Still Working? Plan Before You Leave ^{NEW}

A diagnosis of Young Age Onset Alzheimer's presents unique challenges to families, especially if the person getting the diagnosis is the one who is supporting the family. It is critical for you to educate yourself so you can maximize the benefits available to you. If your doctor is hesitant to diagnose due to limited treatment options, explain that having a diagnosis is essential for planning ahead – some financial protections are only available while you're still working.

The following is a summary based on information from the Alzheimer's Association. For full details and additional questions to consider, visit: Receiving a diagnosis while working.

- 1. Before making any decisions, speak with your HR department, a benefits counselor, or a financial advisor familiar with disability and retirement planning.
- 2. Disability Insurance. Disability insurance replaces income if illness prevents you from working. Employer plans typically cover a percentage of salary (taxable); private policies pay a set amount (not taxed). Policies must be in place before symptoms begin. Check with your employer to see if you have short-term and/or long-term disability insurance, and be sure to review the waiting periods, benefit amounts, duration of coverage, and any medical documentation required. If you're unsure about your rights or need help navigating the claims process, consider speaking with a benefits coordinator or employment attorney.
- 3. Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA). FMLA allows up to 12 weeks of unpaid leave with continued group health coverage. This applies to employers with 50+ employees. Check with HR to confirm eligibility and job protections. Learn more on the U.S. Department of Labor website at Family and Medical Leave
- 4. COBRA. COBRA allows continued health coverage for up to 18–36 months after leaving a job or reducing hours (companies with 20+ employees). You pay full premium plus up to 2% in admin fees. Learn more at the U.S. Department of Labor: Continuation of Health Coverage \(COBRA\)

If you're already unemployed:

- 5. Disability and Employment Considerations
 - The Social Security Administration (SSA) has added specific types of dementia (not all) to the list of conditions under its Compassionate Allowances (CAL) initiative, giving those with the disease expedited access to Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI).
 - Information on qualifications and how to apply for benefits can be found at alz.org and search "Social Security Disability" or Help & Support → Resources → Publications → Financial and Legal → SSDI Checklist for Early-Onset Alzheimer's.

Return to Table of Contents

Still Working? Plan Before You Leave (continued)

6. Health Insurance. You may also qualify for:
 - Affordable Care Act (ACA) Marketplace: State-run exchanges offer plans with subsidies. Pre-existing conditions are covered. Learn more: HealthCare.gov
 - Medicare: Available after receiving Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) for 24 payments—regardless of age. Learn more: SSDI and Medicare information from Social Security Administration
7. Retirement benefits. Early access to IRAs, annuities, and pensions may be possible due to disability status. You may avoid the 10% early withdrawal penalty. Taxes still apply but delaying withdrawals until you're out of work could reduce the tax burden.
8. Life Insurance benefits. If your policy includes a critical or chronic illness rider, you may be eligible to access a portion of the benefits before death.

Basics

MAKE BRAIN HEALTH A PRIORITY ^{NEW}

With a diagnosis of Alzheimer's or dementia, it's natural to focus on what's going wrong—but it's just as important to recognize what's still possible. A focus on brain health means having a plan to support the brain's well-being, even in the midst of a diagnosis.

Here are key areas to focus on to support your brain health:

- Purpose
Staying connected to what gives your life meaning—whether it's family, faith, nature, or a favorite hobby—can boost mood, motivation, and resilience.
- Mindset
Mindset is about more than staying positive – it's about seeing possibilities, working with reality, and focusing on what you can do, even in the face of challenges.
- Social Connections
Regular, meaningful social interaction helps protect against cognitive decline and supports emotional well-being for both partners.
- Physical Exercise
Movement increases blood flow to the brain, supports memory and thinking, and reduces risk factors like high blood pressure and diabetes.
- Nutrition
A brain-healthy diet (like the Mediterranean or MIND diet) provides the nutrients your brain needs to function well and reduces inflammation.
- Minimizing Stress
Chronic stress can harm memory and mood. Finding ways to relax—through nature, music, deep breathing, or routine—can help protect the brain.
- Prioritizing Sleep
Good sleep helps clear toxins from the brain and supports memory and focus. Aim for quality sleep and a consistent routine.
- Managing Medical Numbers
Keeping blood pressure, cholesterol, and blood sugar in check reduces risks for further brain and heart issues.
- Staying Mentally Active
Staying mentally active means more than puzzles – it's connecting with others, engaging in meaningful activities, and getting out into the world to keep your mind and spirit engaged.
- Recharging Mentally
Have a daily plan to recharge – something that moves your body, lightens your mood, and gives your mind a break.

MAKE BRAIN HEALTH A PRIORITY (continued)

Create a Supportive Environment

Abilities and needs change over time, but certain environmental factors can help at every stage of dementia. The ideas below are especially useful in the early stage and can reduce stress, increase comfort, and make it easier for someone with memory changes to stay engaged and connected.

- Quiet Helps Clarity. Limit background noise – like TV or music – during conversations and choose quieter times or places for outings.
- Go at a Comfortable Pace. Avoid overscheduling; build in breaks between activities to prevent fatigue and frustration.
- Familiar Feels Safe. Keep routines, places and faces consistent when possible; small doses of novelty are fine, but too much can be overwhelming.
- Choose Smaller Groups. Fewer people mean less distraction and more meaningful conversation.
- One thing at a time. Focus fully on a single task – whether eating, talking or getting dressed.
- Simplify Steps. Break big tasks into smaller ones or do tasks together to add clarity and connection.

If you (the care partner) are interested in being more intentional about making your own brain health a priority, consider joining the Brain Health Project. You can find out more information here or go to www.centerforbrainhealth.org and search for The BrainHealth Project.

WHAT IS MILD COGNITIVE IMPAIRMENT? ^{NEW}

Mild Cognitive Impairment is a condition that involves noticeable change in thinking abilities – such as memory, language, or attention – that are greater than expected for a person’s age, but not severe enough to interfere significantly with daily life or independent function.

Does MCI always lead to dementia?

No. While MCI can increase the risk of developing dementia, not everyone with MCI will progress to Alzheimer’s or another type of dementia. Some people remain stable for many years, and others may even improve, especially when underlying causes (like sleep problems, medication side-effects, or mood issues) are addressed.

What if I’m Concerned about Memory and Suspect MCI?

- 1. Understand that some changes are normal with age. It’s natural to experience some changes in memory and thinking as we get older. Everyone ages differently and for many people over 65, occasional forgetfulness or slower processing is common and not necessarily a sign of something serious.
- 2. Talk to your doctor. If you notice changes in memory and thinking, don’t ignore them – bring them up with your doctor. Your doctor may take a “wait and see” approach, but your concerns deserve attention.
- 3. Ask your doctor to check other possible reasons for cognitive change. Several treatable issues can mimic or worsen cognitive symptoms, including:
 - Medication side effects – Some medications, or combinations of medications, can cause confusion or memory problems.
 - Sleep disorders – Conditions like sleep apnea or chronic insomnia can significantly impact attention and memory.
 - Mood changes – Depression and anxiety are common in older adults and can affect concentration and mental clarity.
 - Hearing or vision loss – Sensory impairments can make it harder to process information, leading to cognitive strain and social isolation.
 - Medical conditions – Issues such as thyroid disorders, vitamin deficiencies, long COVID, or infections can contribute to cognitive changes.

4. Be your own advocate. You know yourself best. If you're noticing consistent changes in memory, attention or mood – and a spouse or close friend has observed them too – it's important to pay attention, even if your doctor isn't initially concerned. Start tracking these changes by writing down specific examples and noticing how often they occur. This record can offer valuable insight over time and help your healthcare provider better understand your experience. Bring your notes to your next appointment and ask for referrals or additional support if needed.

5. Prioritize activities that protect your brain. Research shows that good physical health is the foundation for good brain health. Lifestyle choices that have been shown to support brain function include:
 - Living with Purpose. Having a sense of meaning and purpose in life is associated with better cognitive function and emotional resilience. Engage in activities that align with your values, passions, or give back to others.
 - Physical activity. Regular activity improves blood flow to the brain, helps control medical numbers and actually supports memory function. In addition to aerobic exercise (30 minutes most days of the week), add strength training.
 - A brain healthy diet. Diets like the Mediterranean or MIND diet, rich in fruits, vegetables, whole grains, fish, and healthy fats, have been linked to better brain health.
 - Cognitive engagement. Challenging your brain with new learning, puzzles, reading, or creative hobbies helps build cognitive reserve.
 - Social connection. Spending time with others protects against isolation, which is a risk factor for cognitive decline. Social connections also improve overall emotional well-being.
 - Prioritizing sleep and emotional health. Poor sleep and chronic stress can worsen cognitive symptoms. Good sleep hygiene and managing anxiety or depression are key.

Final Thought

It is important for all of us to take care of our brain health so our brain can function at its best. If you are noticing changes, think of it as an opportunity to act and take small, consistent steps to support your brain health.

TALKING ABOUT DEMENTIA: A Helpful Guide to Common Diagnoses ^{NEW}

To read a NIA publication with a more in-depth review of dementias, visit The Dementias: Hope Through Research

Mild Cognitive Impairment (MCI)

MCI means someone is experiencing more thinking or memory changes than expected for their age, but they're still able to manage daily life on their own. Some people with MCI go on to develop dementia, but not all do. For more information see: What is Mild Cognitive Impairment?

What Is Dementia?

Dementia is a broad term for changes in thinking and memory that are big enough to interfere with daily life. Just like there are many types of flowers, there are many types of dementia—each with its own pattern.

Alzheimer's Disease (AD)

Alzheimer's is the most common type of dementia. It often starts with memory problems and can also affect language, problem-solving, and organization over time.

For more information, visit: Alzheimer's Disease Fact Sheet

Primary Progressive Aphasia (PPA)

PPA is a type of dementia that begins with changes in language—finding words, understanding speech, or speaking clearly—before other thinking abilities are affected. Primary Progressive Aphasia

Lewy Body Dementia (LBD)

This type of dementia can cause memory and thinking problems along with visual hallucinations, sleep disruptions, and movement changes that look similar to Parkinson's disease. <https://www.lbda.org/>

Frontotemporal Dementia (FTD)

FTD tends to affect personality, behavior, or language first, rather than memory. People may act in uncharacteristic ways or have trouble with speech and understanding words.

www.theaftd.org

Vascular Dementia (VaD)

This type is caused by problems with blood flow to the brain, often after a stroke or a series of small strokes. Thinking changes can vary depending on which part of the brain is affected. Go to <https://www.beingpatient.com> and search 'Vascular Dementia'.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF DEMENTIA MINDS

National not-for-profit organization formed by people with a diagnosis to create a larger dialogue about dementia and further the population's knowledge.

Mission

Establish and fund a nationwide network of Dementia Minds groups, led by individuals living with dementia. These groups would facilitate dialogue and education for dementia patients, healthcare professionals, researchers, families, caregivers, policymakers, and communities on effective strategies for living well with neurocognitive disorders.

Dementia Minds Group

In addition to support, Dementia Minds Groups:

- Share the experience of living with dementia.
- Share strategies to live well with dementia.
- Develop friendships.
- Learn new things.
- Have fun.
- Create resources, presentations, and more for others.
- Conduct presentations for people living with dementia, licensed health care professionals, researchers, families, care partners, policymakers, and communities at large.

Groups meet once a week for an hour over Zoom. Groups are closed, so you meet with the same people each week. Anyone with a diagnosis of dementia or MCI is eligible to join.

Resources

Their website offers resources for cooking, reading, celebrations, educational websites, and more. All tips and stories come from National Council of Dementia Minds group members.

HEARING SERVICES (CALLIER CENTER)

Brain Health and Hearing:

Hearing loss is frustrating when it affects our communication, but did you know that research indicates that hearing loss is linked to cognitive function and overall brain health? Even a mild hearing loss can increase the risk of dementia and brain atrophy due to auditory deprivation. The parts of the brain that process sound are affected impacting overall brain health.

In Collaboration with Center for BrainHealth:

Audiologists at the Callier Center for Communication Disorders look forward to collaborating with Center for BrainHealth by providing a comprehensive evaluation of your hearing in quiet and noisy conditions to join you on your journey to healthy hearing and brain function.

Proven Benefits:

Evaluating and treating hearing loss has been shown to:

- Restore communication
- Reduce mental fatigue due to increased listening effort
- Decrease feelings of isolation and depression
- Improve memory, attention, and focus
- Improve overall brain health and reduce cognitive decline

Personalized Experience:

Receive a comprehensive evaluation of your hearing and a personal communication needs assessment from our experts in hearing and communication needs. Our evaluation process takes approximately one hour and is provided by a licensed, professional audiologist.

Following the evaluation, the audiologist will explain the results and recommend a management plan based on your individual needs. This comprehensive evaluation is covered by insurance with a referral from a physician, or a self-pay option is available. A self-pay quote can be provided when scheduling.

To Schedule Your Visit, Please Contact:

972.883.3030 for the Dallas location, or 972.883.3630 for the Richardson location.

Brain Donation

Brain Donation

Brain donation plays a crucial role in advancing research on Alzheimer's disease and other dementias, including research into new treatments. When someone donates their brain, it's used for scientific purposes. Unlike other organs, it's not transplanted to another person. A single donated brain can yield tissue for hundreds of research studies which makes brain donation a valuable gift for researchers and future generations
