

How To: Share an appointment booking link with clients (from the Communication Tool to their app)

- You can now just click a button and share the booking link with clients rather than instructing them how to make a booking in the app or telling them to ring
- It will appear as a button for clients to click and will take them into the booking flow within the app (which is connected to your Vetstoria process)

Adding a booking link is now in the message box

- When you are typing a reply or a new message to clients, you'll see a calendar icon (button).
- Clicking that icon will add a link in your message.

What it looks like in the Communication Tool

- Once you click to add the appointment booking link, you will see it placed at the bottom of your message.

What it looks like in the client's app

- When you add the booking link, it will appear as a designed button in your message.
- The client can click that button and see the available dates/times at your practice (via Vetstoria)
