ACCESSIBILITY, INCLUSION AND EMPLOYMENT PLAN

Steps leading to a building, doors not wide enough for a wheelchair, lift buttons without braille, chairs that can't be adjusted. These are some of the very obvious barriers that exclude people with disability from being part of the workforce.

But there are other, less obvious barriers, including our own practices and processes.

Life Without Barriers (LWB) has a strong reputation for its commitment to working with people in the community to help them live their life their way.

This Accessibility, Inclusion and Employment Plan (AIEP) provides our employees and our customers with detail on what we will do to create an accessible and inclusive workplace.

DEVELOPING THE PLAN

In our previous Accessibility Action Plan, we committed to projects and actions that improved access and inclusion for people with disability. We achieved outcomes including the formation of the Disability Services Advisory Council (DSAC), <http://disability.lwb.org.au/> and the Disability Services Achievement Awards.

Insights from our previous plan combined with consultation with our DSAC, have helped us co-design a contemporary Accessibility, Inclusion and Employment Plan.

LWB also sought the advice and guidance of the Australian Network on Disability (AND), which shared its own expertise, experiences and knowledge from other organisations, to assist in the formation of our plan. We acknowledge and thank both DSAC and AND for their ongoing support.

The activities and actions of this plan were informed with feedback from employees, Board Members, customers, and engagement with others outside of LWB.

GOALS AND TARGETS

This plan outlines the actions LWB will take over the next two years to improve the equitable inclusion and economic participation of people with disability. It includes our plans to ensure our culture is truly inclusive and respectful of people with disability.

Our key goal is to increase employment of people with disability. In year one of the plan, our target is 4% of new appointments will be people with disability. This will increase to 10% in year two.

This target will drive our commitment to proactively recruit people with disability into meaningful roles across the breadth of LWB.

A MESSAGE FROM TERRY LAWLER

– CHAIR OF THE BOARD

Since our inception over 20 years ago, we have helped to change the lives of hundreds of thousands of people living in communities across Australia.

We are rightly proud of our ongoing, consistent commitment to this vision; and we are equally proud to be broadening this work to ensuring no person is restricted from working with LWB because of a disability.

As a leading service provider we take social responsibility seriously and want to demonstrate our leadership in access, inclusion and employment.

Our name, Life Without Barriers, is a testament to our belief in accessibility, inclusion and employment, and our LWB plan itself brings that commitment to action. We aim to ensure people with disability have greater autonomy and independence in their lives, and recognise that this can be achieved by increasing their economic participation in the workforce.

I commend this plan to you, and my best wishes and congratulations to all at LWB for your commitment to its implementation.

TERRY LAWLER

A MESSAGE FROM GRAEME INNES AM

– MEMBER OF THE BOARD

A key reason I joined the Board of LWB in 2014, is for the active role they play in the disability sector and partnering with people to change lives for the better.

As much of my working career has focused on securing equal rights for people with disabilities, I believe this plan will help LWB identify how to strengthen its role to also become an employer of choice for people with disabilities.

Something I am passionate about, and you may have heard me say this before, is the best way to help a person with disability is to give them a job. So for me, the highlight of this plan is the employment goal.

LWB will need to engage a multi-pronged approach to achieve these goals in the two year timeframe, but the roadmap to get there is through implementation of the plan. I commend LWB for setting targets and publically sharing them.

Changing the employment landscape for people with disabilities will facilitate overall benefits to the community and the economy, which flow from participation by the widest range of people.

I challenge every member of LWB to expand their idea of what someone with disabilities CAN DO.

GRAEME INNES

INTRODUCTION

– CHIEF EXECUTIVE

As a provider of services for people with disability, we understand the importance of empowering the individual to have choice, access to services and opportunity for greater independence and community participation.

This plan will challenge LWB to consider access and inclusion in everything that we do. The plan details the structured approach we will take to embrace our responsibility to keep improving how we interact with our customers, as well as proactively open up career opportunities for people with disabilities.

Creating a culture that is welcoming and supportive of employees of all abilities will not only harness diversity of experience and perspective, but also provide us with greater insight into the needs of our customers with disabilities. This in turn will help us to better serve our customers and support them to achieve their full potential.

We are grateful to the members of our Disability Services Advisory Council and the Australian Network on Disability for their recommendations, guidance and review of this plan. We look forward to their ongoing advice and support throughout its implementation.

I ask that you take the time to review our Accessibility, Inclusion and Employment Plan and consider your role in bringing it to life.

CLAIRE ROBBS

LIVING OUR VALUES

OUR VISION FOR ACCESSIBILITY

As a major provider of supports to people with disability across Australia, it is vital that as an organisation, we live our values.

Our purpose is to partner with people to change lives for the better, and that includes increasing people's independence through meaningful, well-paid employment.

OUR POSITION ON DIVERSITY AND INCLUSION

At LWB we celebrate that each individual is unique.

We respect and appreciate the differences of our employees and the customers we support, and are enriched by the diversity of their gender, sexual orientation / identity, age, ability, cultural and religious beliefs, perspectives, life experience and ideologies.

Diversity encourages people to be true to their individual differences. Inclusion seeks to reject discrimination and break down barriers to access and participation. In simple terms, diversity is the mix, inclusion is getting the mix to work well together.

Diversity and inclusion encompasses acceptance and respect, and reflects our values:

RESPONSIVE – Listen and respond to the diverse needs of individuals

IMAGINATIVE – Be creative and open to new ways of breaking down barriers

COURAGEOUS – Support individuals to make their own decisions and choices

RESPECTFUL – Respect diversity and encourage acceptance

RELATIONSHIPS – Connect, understand and learn from difference.

LIVING OUR VALUES (CONTINUED)

We respect the rights of all people to make informed choices in their lives. Our employees will support our customers as necessary, to make these choices. We learn from, and are enriched by the diverse backgrounds, experiences and perspectives of our employees to deliver excellent individualised support to equally diverse communities. We encourage the diversity of thought and innovation which is brought by employees and those we support, and seek to leverage the richness of diversity to make a truly positive impact in people's lives.

CREATING AN ACCESSIBLE AND INCLUSIVE WORKPLACE

This plan sets out our aims, actions, and outcomes for creating an environment that is supportive and increases opportunities for participation in our workforce by people with disability.

Our three areas of focus are:

A. Employment and our people

We commit to ensuring our employees and managers are disability aware, and that our recruitment process and workplaces encourage and advance the employment of people with disability at LWB.

B. Accessibility and our services

LWB pledges to ensure our premises, digital platforms, and vehicles are accessible to people with disability, and that we seek advice from people with disability before making procurement decisions.

C. Leadership and our partners

Through leadership, local and corporate partnerships, development of public policy, and a co-design approach, LWB commits to improving accessibility and inclusion for all.

OUR PLAN

EMPLOYMENT

A PERSONAL ACCOUNT – ANONYMOUS

I am employed by Life Without Barriers (LWB) as a Case Manager in an Out-of-Home Care Team.

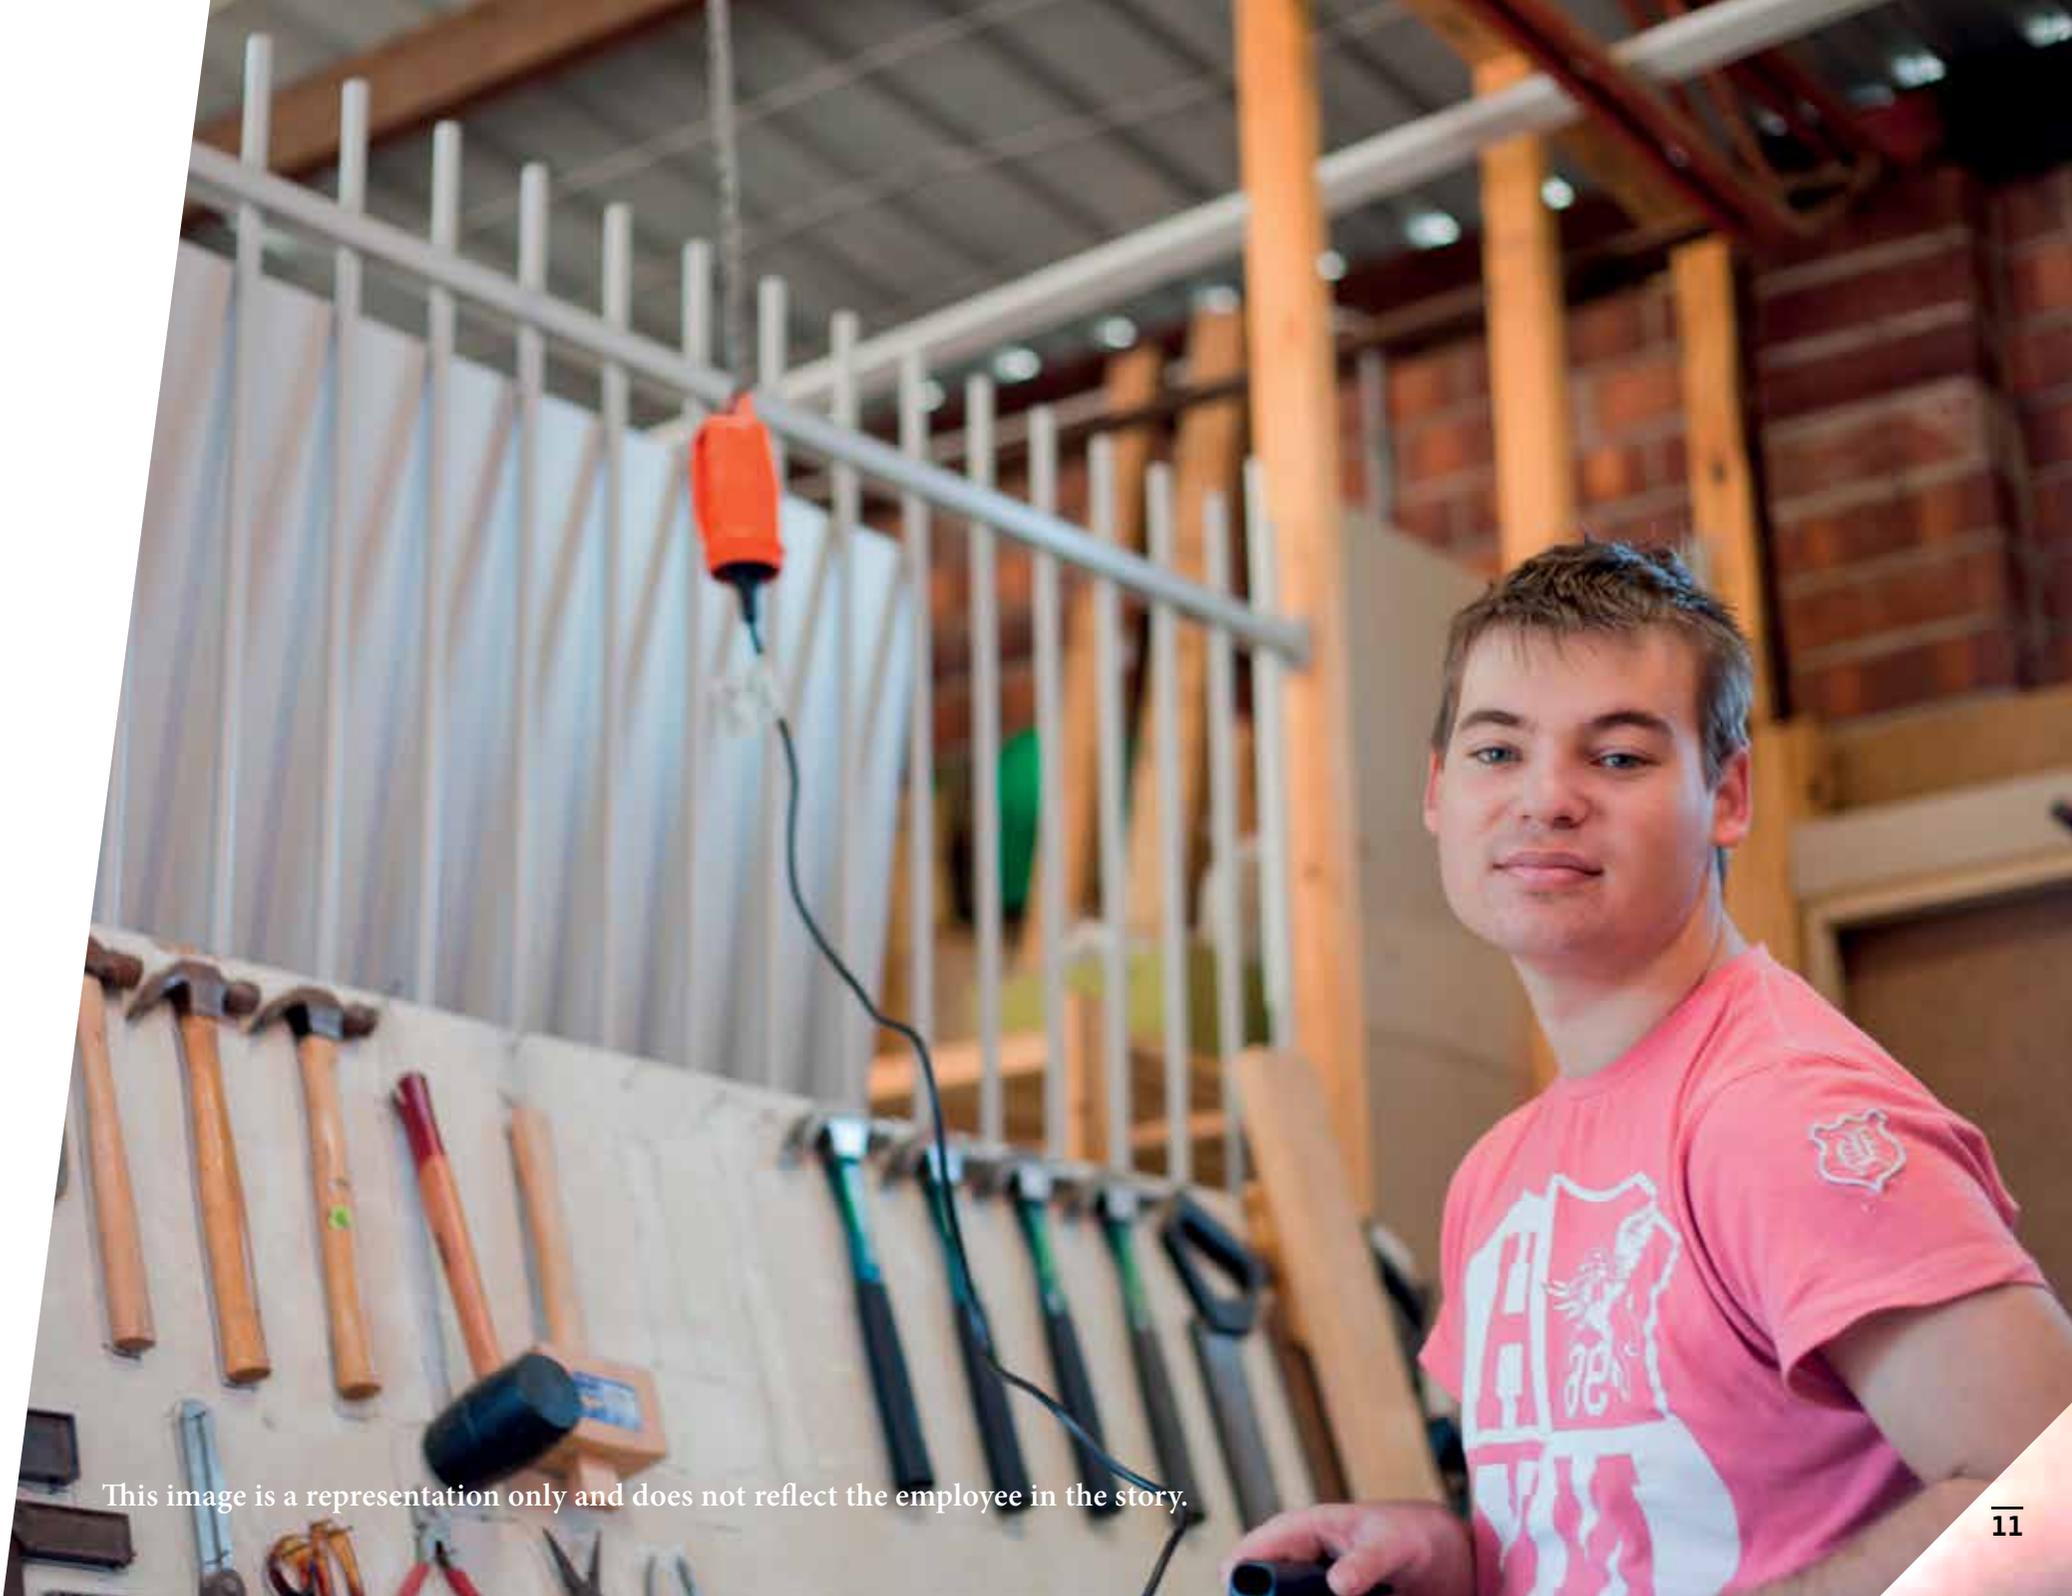

I live with a hereditary condition, facioscapulohumeral muscular dystrophy, which is characterised by muscle weakness and wasting, which is gradually changing over time. At age 43, I'm still walking around unaided, though am experiencing more limitations with walking downhill, uphill and stairs. I do fall over at times, which whilst embarrassing and frustrating, is becoming more worrying, as I can hurt myself and I don't have the strength to stand up again unaided if I fall.

My managers have been supportive in assisting me to ensure I don't have to visit clients with stairs or steep driveways. I also try to stay from carer/client outdoor activities due to my difficulties with navigating uneven ground. Getting to and from events in unknown places, I get quite anxious about having to walk around, so sometimes I just avoid them.

There is a lot for me to think about, and sometimes I feel concerned about the future. I foresee that I will need more support to work in the coming years, with things like parking, having a suitable fleet car that works for my individual needs and looking at the work hours I can manage.

As an organisation, I think we need to consider people's individual requirements, and their capacity for part-time work, as well as how the workplace can be adjusted to keep people involved in accordance with their interests, abilities and accounting for each person's unique situation.

I love my job, coming from my own background of being in state care as a teenager, I enjoy advocating for clients and working on their behalf to improve their lives. Like everyone, I worry about things – including my concerns outlined above – and how it will affect my employment in later years. Mentally, I need to be employed, as I wish to contribute to society and be a productive member of it. I look forward to seeing how LWB is growing and diversifying and what the organisation will be able to offer people like me in the future.

ACCESSIBILITY

FROM MY PERSPECTIVE – BY DEBBIE BROOKS

Having been at Life Without Barriers (LWB) for 15 years in total. I love what I do as a Supporter of Carers in the Out of Home Care Team. Family is extremely important to me and I am part of a busy household, including my children, step-children, and all the people I care for. LWB is my other extended family.

People are sometimes surprised when I say that I was married with my first child when realised I had a diagnosis of dyslexia. I had often struggled at school, I understood everything, but found it hard to get my thoughts on paper. Equally sometimes my comprehension takes longer than others and sometimes I mispronounce words. My kids affectionately call it “mum-talk”.

I wanted to share some insight and history into my dyslexia. I have great difficulty with spelling, reading and typing on a keyboard. I also find a lot of words difficult to pronounce and my comprehension and grammar can be slow and repetitive.

As an adult, although I have adapted to my abilities, I value the support I have in my workplace. My direct manager assists me by helping with interpreting and explaining questions, and providing feedback on my written material. Everyone else is not always so tolerant.

I now have a quieter working area that is freer from distractions so I can concentrate on the task at hand. My work can be slow and I may need to read what I have written over and over again to make sure it makes sense as I have a dissociation from the key pad to the screen. In short I do get there in the end – I just take the very long way round.

Over the years, one of the most difficult issues was managers not understanding the impact that dyslexia has on my work. Because of this, I constantly felt judged on my work quality e.g. spelling and unrealistic time frames. I feel some target training for managers around an individual’s disability would be useful so the person feels empowered and supported in their workplace.

I am now at the Maitland office and have a pen that converts writing into text which was purchased for me a few years ago. I call it my magic pen, it has helped me enormously. I don’t use it as much now but it helped me a lot. I am at a desk away from the main area of the floor this also helps a lot with my concentration levels.

There are always other ideas for doing things differently and I hope the organisation is open to that. As an example, working from home to type up work would be a great help especially when I have carer reviews to do as this requires all my concentration to complete.

I am happy to share my story and hope it helps someone in the future so they don’t endure what I went through in the early stages in my career trying to get people to understand and support me.

I always say we should be more understanding – there may be reasons for people to be slower to do things, but there is always a way.

LEADERSHIP

THE HUB – CHANGING AND GUIDING YOUNG LIVES, ONE AT A TIME

Our purpose is to partner with people to change lives for the better – and the LWB Hub program exemplifies this.

In August 2015, a grassroots idea led to the creation of a program for young men with disability. It was co-designed by the men themselves and LWB employees – and is called The Hub.

A key strength of The Hub is the mentor system. The Hub isn't staffed by disability staff workers who 'do' for the clients, instead the men come together in the space to support and mentor each other. The need to support each individual to grow in confidence and build on their abilities by creating a non-traditional and flexible service was identified in the early days of establishing the program.

Each young person identifies their goals and aspirations and LWB ensure the program reflects and responds to their needs and wishes. On joining, they are matched with a mentor and welcomed into an existing social group.

The Hub is helping these young men take a bigger role in their local community, take up education, volunteering roles, and recreation. It also offers an opportunity to meet and make friends.

“Many of these young men are for the first time in their lives enjoying true mateship, and it's so great to be part of their journey and making a contribution to their futures and overall happiness,” said Melinda Ferrier, Operations Manager.

The group started from small beginnings and has grown quickly. It now provides support for 24 young men with disability several days each week.
