Manager Commentary

For the quarter the fund was down 4,5% while the All Share and Capped Swix indices were both up 5,9%. Moves in the broader indices were very concentrated in precious metals, two areas where we had very little exposure on business fundamental grounds. Only one third of the constituents were up for the quarter. The balance of the index constituents, those that are more exposed to the South African economy and that had benefitted from the formation of the Government of National Unity underperformed substantially. Our portfolio was, and remained at quarter end, tilted toward the latter group. We continue to think the GNU will hold and the outlook for our economy continues to improve. This admittedly has been a very difficult in recent weeks and may still turn out to be wrong.

The initial days of the Trump presidency has introduced tremendous uncertainty about the future of the post- World War II global order as he and his team moved to "rebalance" what they perceive to be an unbalanced trade and security position. We had thought the initial period of his second term would be volatile, but nothing like what has transpired.

We have not made drastic changes to the fund as the portfolio is constructed from the bottom up in businesses we believe to be attractive on a fundamental basis. During the quarter our long positions in Naspers and British American Tobacco, our two biggest positions added to performance, while our positions in consumer facing (Truworths, Pepkor and SuperGroup) and industrial businesses (Bidvest, Hudaco and Reunert) detracted. At quarter end the fund's net equity exposure was 73%, while gross exposure was 101%.

predicted range of performance is wide, implying greater volatility.

Std Dev.

Beta (Bear and Bull) Bear/(Bull) Beta is a relative measure of the sensitivity of the fund's return to negative/(positive) changes in the
