BRUSH-STONE ACID STAIN CARD

Disclaimer: Brush-Tone Acid Stain is a reactive stain that uses mineral oxides to chemically react with the free lime at the surface of the slab to produce a permanent color change. The colors produced are unique and vary with each color selection. But to achieve the natural character of aged stone, concrete and masonry, use Brush-Tone Acid Stain to create natural color variations on unadorned concrete, naturally colored concrete, color finished concrete, and masonry. Colors shown are an approximation of actual color. To confirm the proper color selection, have your contractor prepare a color sample in an inconspicuous area of the actual surface to be used. Brush-Tone Acid Stain is available in 1 gallon units that cover approximately 200-300 square feet.
